U. W. Man's Book Held Inaccurate

Veracity of Statements On Makeup of Russian Bureau Challenged

Senator Opens Attack

Quotes Alleged Propaganda In Support of U. S. Non-Recognition

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The state department is being attacked by what officials term Bolshevist sympathizers in this country, one of the most serious assaults being made in a book entitled "The Russian Soviet Republic" by Edward A. Ross, professor of sociology in the University of Wisconsin, which has just been put on the market.

The dedication reads:

"To my fellow Americans who have become weary of being fed lies and propaganda about Russia this book is dedicated."

In an effort to ascribe the attitude of the American government towards Bolshevist Moscow to causes unfavorable to the soviet regime and prejudicial to this nation's policy, the author alleges that "the division of Russian affairs in the state department became a nest of anti-Bolsheviks, who, by birth or by marriage, were connected with the expropriated Russian aristocracy."

No Proof in Records

An examination of the official records discloses there is no foundation for Prof. Ross' charges, which he makes the foundation for the farther assertion that the "state department exhibited a malignancy and hypocrisy respecting soviet Russia which is very unrepresentative of the American people."

The chief of the Russian division of the state department is Evan Erastus Young, a native of Ohio, whose wife is an American, and all his aides are native-born Americans, none of them having any Russian interests.

Mr. Young has had a long and distinguished career in the American diplomatic and consular services. He became chief of the division in July, 1923, and in addition to many responsible posts had been American commissioner to the Baltic states for nearly three years. His assistants are:

Alfred W. Klieforth, a native of Wisconsin, who served two years in the American embassy at Petrograd, entered the United States army in 1917, and returned to the diplomatic service in 1920. His wife was a Russian, this fact, seemingly, being the sole reason for Prof. Ross' wholesale charges. Mr. Klieforth, who is 35, is an expert in Russia.

Two Have No Wives

S. P. Tuck was born in New York in 1891 and entered the consular service in 1918. He is a bachelor.

Peter Kumlien, who is also a bachelor and a native American, is one of the most prominent young lawyers of Chicago. He served as a captain in the United States army during the World war, then joined the American Near East administration, going into Russia with Col. Haskell in September, 1921, and coming out through the Crimea in August, 1922. He practiced law until May, 1917, when he entered the army.

Robert F. Kelly, a native American, one of the youngest men in diplomatic service, entered it in September, 1923, after having served as captain in the United States army. He was assisting military attache at Helsingfors, and associated with Mr. Young in the Baltic states. Mr. Kelly is regarded by some authorities as being the foremost living student of Russia. He specialized on Russia while a student at Harvard university, from which he was graduated in 1915. He has a perfect command of the Russian language. His wife is a Swiss.

SENATOR LODGE UPHOLDS U. S. POLICY

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON,—The administration's policy of non-recognition of the present soviet government of Russia was vigorously supported today in the senate by Sen. Lodge, Republican leader and chairman of the foreign relations committee.

Quoting extensively from public records and documents to show the interlocking of the Soviet government and the Communist international Sen. Lodge also brought additional evidence to the support of Secty. Hughes' contention that officials of the Soviet government are a party through the Communist international to revolutionary propaganda in the U. S. aimed at the overthrow of the American government.

"In my judgment," he said, in summarizing his argument, "it is

MISS ELIZABETH G. STOLTE
(Photograph by Badger Studio)

Miss Elizabeth G. Stolte '25, will be the Prom partner of Clifford S. Nolte '25, general chairman of the "Prom of History."

Miss Stolte is the daughter of Mrs. Smart Stolte of Reedsburg, Wisconsin. She is a member of the Alpha Phi sorority, president of Yellow Tassel and secretary of Keystone. She was on the freshman and sophomore cabinet of the Y. W. C. A. member of the 1925 Badger staff and is on the women's arrangements committee for the 1925 Prom.

"She accepted my invitation last Thursday night," Nolte commented last night as he gave out the announcement.

"It was about 10 o'clock when we were seated before the fireplace at the Alpha Phi house, and I just asked Betty if she would be my Prom partner. That's all there was to it."

Love For Son Reunites Pair Divorced Here

Judge Stevens Vacates Order of Divorce In Schroeder Case

Chris J. Schroeder, Madison insurance man, and his wife, Beulah, who were divorced here in circuit court April 6, by Judge E. Ray Stevens after one of the longest divorce trials on record in Dane county courts, have been reunited and their divorce set aside—all because of their little boy, Jack.

Papers vacating the divorce decree were signed by Judge Stevens and filed in the office of Herbert Hansen, court clerk, Monday. The judge's order stated in formal language that because of their mutual love for their little son and the wish of the two principals to be united he had decided to set aside the decree. They have one other child, Gerda, 13 years old, a daughter born as a result of Mr. Schroeder's first marriage. The Schroeders formerly lived on Rugby Row.

Two Trucks Kept Busy Fixing Frozen Meters

Two service trucks of the Madison water department have been constantly employed since the severe cold spell replacing meters damaged by freezing, L. A. Smith, superintendent of the department, announced Monday.

The highest temperature during the 24 hours ending at 7 this morning was 18 at 7 p. m. Sunday, and the lowest 15 at 7 a. m. Monday. The sun sets at 4:40.

The cold wave in the North was broken up yesterday by an area of low barometer from western Canada that has now reached the St. Lawrence valley after causing gales in the lake regions.

The cold wave continues in the South, where freezing temperatures prevail along the Gulf coast.

An area of low barometer is crossing the Canadian Rockies, and is accompanied by Chinook along the front of the Rockies as far south as Denver.

Try to Kill Kemal Pasha; Wife Injured

Attempt Made to Assassinate President of Turkey

(By the Associated Press)
ATHENS—The Mitylene correspondent of the Greek newspaper Eleftheron Vemas, telegraphs that an unsuccessful attempt was made to assassinate Mustapha Kemal Pasha, president of the Republic of Turkey, at Smyrna. The hand grenade intended to Kemal injured his wife.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, who on Oct. 20, last, became the first president of the new Republic of Turkey, is the man to whom Turkey owes her present position in the near east. Prominent early in the World war in the young Turk movement, Kemal became a military leader of fame and it was because of his skill as a general that the British were obliged to adanbon the Gallipoli campaign.

Fishing Schooner Sinks In Superior; Crew Saved

BAYFIELD, Wis.—The "Thomas Fraint" the first fishing schooner to try winter fishing on Lake Superior, sank early today two miles north of Two Harbors and seven miles from Bayfield. The crew of eight men, together with the captain and owner, Einer Miller, Bayfield, reached shore safely in a small motor boat after a six hour battle with a blizzard raging on the lake. Loss to schooner and cargo estimated at $25,000.

Thurston Resigns Post at General Hospital

H. K. Thurston, for six and a half years general superintendent of the General hospital, has resigned that position and will take an executive office with the Jackson clinic.

Miss Grace Crafts, formerly superintendent of nurses at the hospital, has been appointed acting superintendent of the institution by the board of directors. Miss Crafts will undoubtedly be made permanent superintendent of the hospital, according to E. J. B. Schubring, president of the hospital association. Offer of increased salary is the reason advanced by the resigning man for his action. The resignation is to be effective Feb. 1.

Roads Lose Court Test of Rail Act

Supreme Bench Upholds Recapture of Excess Earnings Clause

Confiscation Is Charged

Carriers Declare That Return of Added Profits is Unconstitutional

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The recapture of excess earnings clause of the transportation act was declared valid and constitutional today by the supreme court.

The decision was handed down in a case brought by the Dayton-Goose Creek Railway Co. of Texas, and in which a number of important railways joined, pleading that the provision would result in confiscation.

The first concerted attack by the railroads upon the transportation act of 1920, enacted when the railroads were returned to private ownership after operation under government control during the World war, reached the supreme court in an appeal bought by the Dayton-Goose Creek Railway Co., to test the constitutionality of the "recapture clause" under which railroads are required to return to the government one-half of their earnings in excess of 6 per cent on the value of their property used in transportation service.

A number of the larger railroad companies joined the Dayton-Goose Creek Co. in its attack, contending that the returns from rates fixed by the Interstate Commerce commission must be assumed to be fair and reasonable, and to constitute only such revenue as the carriers are entitled to receive. Other roads were not of this view, and refrained from joining in the case.

In appealing to the supreme court the railroads contesting the provision contended it was beyond the power of congress to determine what they should do with their earnings, and that to deprive them of legitimate profits was confiscation.

Milk Price War

Possibility Of Settlement Looms As One Distributor Meets Demand

Possibility of a settlement of Madison's milk price war loomed Monday with the announcement that one of the two local distributors has virtually agreed to meet the producers' terms, and that a meeting will be held with the other distributor Tuesday or Wednesday.

The farmers are asking $2.65 for their milk in January, a continuation of the December price. A. H. Kramer, manager of the Kennedy Dairy Co., one of the distributors, is said to have consented to pay this price. B. H. Ter Beest, proprietor of the Capital Dairy Co., the other local distributor, was not present at a meeting held here Saturday afternoon. The directors' committee of the Madison Milk Producers' association will not call upon him to discuss the situation.

Old Firm Moves

Kroncke Hardware Company, Pioneer, Will Leave Capitol Square

The Kroncke Hardware Co., 13 W. Mifflin st., is to move out of its present quarters, it was learned Monday. The Wisconsin Life Insurance Co. owns the building in which the hardware is located.

While no definite announcement has been made, it is understood that the company secure new quarters on State st. It was also rumored that the present Outlet store building was under consideration.

The Kroncke Hardware Co. is a business landmark in Madison.

Seize Gulf Liquor Ship With 2,600 Cases Rum

GALVESTON, Tex.—The Muriel E. Gov. Blaine may request Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman for a formal statement on his refusal to set up appropriations totaling $155,800 which were voted by the Governor and Treasurer Levitan over a week ago, it was reported Monday.

As yet, Mr. Zimmerman has given the officials no official announcement that he will decline to approve the funds.

Summary of Winning Bok Peace Prize Contest Plan

THE substantial provisions of the winning Bok peace prize plan follows:

I. ENTER THE PERMANENT COURT

That the United States adhere to the Permanent Court of International Justice for the reasons and under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.

II. COOPERATE WITH THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS, WITHOUT FULL MEMBERSHIP AT PRESENT

That without becoming a member of the League of Nations as at present constituted, the United States Government should extend its present cooperation with the League and propose participation in the work of its Assembly and Council under the following conditions and reservations:

SAFEGUARDING OF MONROE DOCTRINE

1. The United States accepts the League of Nations as an instrument of mutual counsel, but it will assume no obligation to interfere with political questions of policy or internal administration of any foreign state.

In uniting its efforts with those of other States for the preservation of peace and promotion of the common welfare, the United States insists upon the safeguarding of the Monroe Doctrine and does not abandon its traditional attitude concerning American independence of the Old World and does not concent to submit its long established policy concerning questions regarded by it as purely American to the recommendation or decision of other Powers.

NO MILITARY OR ECONOMIC FORCE

2. The only kind of compulsion which nations can freely engage to apply to each other in the name of Peace is that which arises from conference, from moral judgment, from full publicity, and from the power of public opinion.

The United States will assume no obligations under Article X in its present form, or under Article XVI in its present form in the Covenant, or in its amended form as now proposed, unless in any particular case Congress has authorized such action.

The United States proposes that Article X and XVI be either dropped altogether or so amended and changed as to eliminate any suggestion of a general agreement to use coercion for obtaining conformity to the pledges of the Covenant.

NO OBLIGATIONS UNDER VERSAILLES TREATY

3. The United States will accept no responsibilities under the Treaty of Versailles unless in any particular case Congress has authorized such action.

LEAGUE OPEN TO ALL NATIONS

4. The United States Government proposes that Article I of the Covenant be construed and applied, or, if necessary, redrafted, so that admission to the League shall be assured to any self-governing State that wishes to join and that receives the favorable vote of two-thirds of the Assembly.

DEVELOPMENT OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

5. As a condition of its participation in the work and counsels of the League, the United States ask that the Assembly and Council consent—or obtain authority—to begin collaboration for the revision and development of international law, employing for this purpose the aid of a commission of jurists. This Commission would be directed to formulate anew existing rules of the law of nations, to reconcile divergent opinions, to consider points hitherto inadequately provided for but vital to the maintenance of international justice, and in general to define the social rights and duties of States. The recommendations of the Commission would be presented from time to time, in proper form for consideration, to the Assembly as to a recommending if not a law-making body.

Author's Name to Be Revealed Later

In order that the vote may be taken solely upon the merits of the plan, the Policy Committee, with the acquiesence of Mr. Bok, has decided not to disclose the authorship of the plan until early in February. The identity of the author is unknown to the members of the Jury of Award and the Policy Committee, except one delegated member.

Text of Winning Plan

THE COMPLETE manuscript of Plan No. 1469 Providing for Cooperation between the United States and other nations "to achieve and preserve the peace of the world" is given below, including the author's reasoning:

PLAN NUMBER 1469

There is Not Room for More Than One Organization to Promote International Cooperation

Five-sixths of all nations, including about four-fifths of mankind, have already created a world-organization, the purpose of which is "to promote international cooperation and to achieve international peace and security."

Those nations cannot and will not abandon this system which has now been actively operating for three and a half years. If leading members of the United States government ever had serious hopes that another association of nations could be formed, such hopes were dispelled during the Washington conference by plain intimations from other Powers that there is

Frear Opens Assault On Mellon Plan

Denounces Propaganda In Favor of Administration Tax Bill

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—Enactment of excess profits, increased inheritance and gift taxes was urged today by Rep. Frear, Wis., republican member of the house ways and means committee.

In an address to the house he came out vigorously in opposition to a number of the important provisions in the Mellon tax bill and denounced the propaganda he declared was being conducted in behalf of the administration's program.

Mr. Frear also asserted that congress will pass the soldiers' bonus bill "notwithstanding the protests of big business men."

In outlining the tax reduction program which he desires to be translated into the law, the Wisconsin member said congress should reduce the tax on earned income by an aggregate of $100,000,000, cut the normal tax on incomes of $4,000 and less from 4 per cent to 2 per cent, and on incomes of more than $4,000 from 8 per cent to 4 per cent. This is a greater reduction than has been recommended by Secty. Mellon.

Winner of $100,000 Is Kept Secret

Name Will Not Be Published Until After Referendum

Co-operate With League

Would Make U. S. "Counsel" to Nations' Body, Is Proposal

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK,—The American peace award Sunday night announced that plan No. 1,469 had been adjudged the best of 22,165 entered in competition for the $100,000 offered by Edward W. Bok, Philadelphia publicist, for the best practical plan by which the United States might co-operate with other nations to prevent war.

In its essence this plan proposes first that the United States immediately should enter the permanent court of international justice, indorsed by the late President Harding, and second, without becoming a member of the league of nations as at present constituted, should offer to co-operate with the league, under certain conditions, as a body of mutual counsel.

Author's Identity Unknown

The identity of the author is unknown to the jury of award and policy committee, except one delegated member. The authorship will not be disclosed until a nation wide referendum has been taken to determine whether the plan meets with the support of Americans. This probably will not be until early next month.

Fifty thousand dollars is awarded the winner immediately. The rest of the prize goes to him if the country gives the plan its support.

The jury of award issued the following statement:

"The jury of award realizes that their is no one approach to world peace, and that it is necessary to recognize not merely political but also phychological and economic factors. The only possible pathway to international agreement with reference to these complicated and difficult factors is through mutual counsel and cooperation which the plan selected contemplates. It is therefore the unanimous opinion of the Jury that of the 22,165 plans submitted, Plan Number 1469 is "the best practicable plan by which the United States may ocooperate with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world."

"It is the unanimous hope of the Jury that the first fruit of the mutual counsel and cooperation among the nations which will result from the adoption of the plan selected will be a general prohibition of the manufacture and sale of all materials of war. Snows Fail To Daunt Sistine Choir Singers

Madison's low temperatures and deep snows hold no terrors for the Sistine Chapel Choir which sang at the Parkway theater Saturday night. Although the members hail from the sunny climate of the vatican gardens, where disagreeable weather seldom ocurs, they have become acclimated to blizzards and zero marks in their tour of the United States. They stay in two private cars, which are fitted up for living quarters are more comfortable and homelike than hotel rooms.

onsignor Antonio Rella, director of the choir, is generally host to groups of visitors after the concerts when church members and clergymen come to visit and hear tales of the Eternal City. The choir has appeared twice in Milwaukee and went from Madison to Chicago, to make its fourth appearance in the Auditorium.

The choir consists of 54 singers. The youngest is Felice Almasin, 10 years old.

Democrats of Madison Split On Delegates

Riley Is for McAdoo While Moran and Ryan are for Smith

There is a fine democratic scrap in the offing.

A lively scramble for delegates which has split the democratic party of the state is shown in the fact that local democrats are lined up in different camps.

John Moran and William Ryan attended a conference in Milwaukee Saturday afternoon in the interests of the candidacy of Gov. Al. Smith of New York. Miles C. Riley recently attended a conference in Milwaukee in behalf of W. G. Mc Adoo.

The wet and dry question seems to be the big issue with the democrats. Democrats who place the beer and light wine question above all others are not satisfied with Mc Adoo. They favor Smith. The democrats in the state who are wet will support Smith while those that are dry will favor Mc Adoo.

At a conference Saturday afternoon Democrats who are not in agreement with the Mc Adoo movement, ex-Judge Martin L. Lueck, Beaver Dam, John M. Callahan, of Milwaukee, John Kluwin, Oshkosh, and John Moran, Madison, were asked to become uninstructed delegates for presidential electors at large at the April election.

Between 30 and 40 Democrats from various parts of the state attended the meeting. W. D. Carroll, Prairie du Chien, secretary of the Democratic state central committee presided, and H. W. Bolens, Port Washington, was secretary.

The only action taken by the conference was the adoption of a motion asking the four candidates for delegates at large to accept. It was agreed each of the 11 congressional districts would be left free to select district delegates in any way Democrats of the district desire.

Although uninstructed, the first choice of the four delegates at large and the general sentiment expected at the conference is for Gov. Smith, New York, for president. Messrs. Lueck and Moran said they are for Gov. Smith. Mr. Callahan declined to make a statement but it is understood he is for Gov. Smith first and Senator Underwood, Alabama, as second choice.

"I am for Gov. Smith for president and if elected a delegate from Wisconsin will vote for him as long as he has a chance of nomination," said Judge Lueck. "This is not an anti-McAdoo meeting and I am not against any candidate but am emphatically for Gov. Smith. I am a plain Democrat and believe that party is big enough to supply the instrumentality through which the farmer and laborer, the plain people of the country, can accomplish whatsoever they desire that is right.

"I believe Gov. Smith is a strong candidate because of his popularity. He ran 1,000,000 votes ahead of his ticket in New York, which, I believe, was an expression of the will of the common people of that state and also of the people of the entire country."

Judge Lueck refused to discuss the wet and dry issue.

Others present at the conference admitted the sentiment for Gov. Smith is because he is classed as a wet. J. F. Holland, editor of The Watertown Times, one of those present, declared Smith sentiment in his part of the state among the Democrats is because he is wet.

"The Germans in my part of the state want their beer," said Mr. Holland. "They feel something they have a right to has been taken from them. Gov. Smith is strong because of his wet stand. With a wet candidate, I believe, the Germans can be won back to the Democratic party."

Among others who attended the conference were William Ahlhauser, Port Washington; F. A. Nuberger, Stevens Point; William Ryan, Madison; Oscar Roessler, Jefferson; E. K. Loverud, Stoughton; H. Frank George Dwinnell, Waukesha; William Tuohy, Eagle; M. K. Reilly, Fond du Lac; E. R. Bowler, Adolph Pfister, Sheboygan; Paul A. Hemmy, Juneau; Frank Salter, South Germantown; Tony Lukaszewski, William J. Mc Cormick, Milwaukee; John Hirsig, Charles O'Neill, Madison; D. W. Mc Namara, Montello.

Russian Policy Is Subject of Senate Debate

no time to give the Soviet government the official recognition and approval of the U. S. and invite official representatives to come among us and under the diplomatic shield seek to break up our own labor organizations, attack American laws and American freedom and kindle the flame of riot and disorder throughout our country."

Reviewing in detail the make-up of the various branches of the Russian government the senator offered a table to show that the high officials of the Russian Communist party, the Russian Soviet Republic, the Federation of Soviet Republics and the Communist international practically are one and the same. Here was declared to be presented "a system of interlocking directorates which would be accepted at once by any court or any jury in this country as demonstrated without any further inquiry."

"These interlocking directorates constitute the real government of Russia," he said. "All powers is theirs. In the presence of these facts it is, to my mind, absurd to say that the Russian Soviet Republic really governs Russia. That is merely one of the divisions, and not the most important."

Asserting that he could go on almost indefinitely in giving examples of the work of Soviet leaders and their intention in regard to other countries the speaker said he would content himself with a few examples, first, as to their general intentions and activities in countries other than the U. S. and, second, with a few examples of their intentions and activities in the U. S.

As an example of the latter, he read from a letter written by Trotzky "to an American Communist" Mackay, a negro, which was published in the Moscow Izvestia, on Feb. 15, 1923. It said in part:

"The training of black agitators is the most important revolutionary problem of the moment.

"I am at a loss to say what are the most expedient organization forms for the movement among American negroes, because I am not familiar with the concrete conditions and possibilities; but the organization form will be found as soon as sufficient will for action is displayed."

Sen. Lodge presented also, a pamphlet prepared by the United Mine Workers of America which he said gave a very full account of the activities of the Russian Communist party and the third International in undertaking to gain control of American labor organizations. He said also, that it showed a large expenditure of money in this country by the Communists.

As a further demonstration of the feeling of American labor unions in regard to the Communist movement, the speaker read from the letter of last Dec. 31, written by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in which Mr. Gompers made clear his belief that any compromise with the Soviets would be a victory for them.

Another document presented by the senator was a letter written under date of July 12, 1923, to the workers party of America by the executive committee of the Communist International. It urged greater activity among Communists in America in organizing the workers and combating "capitalist designs."

"This letter has great importance," the senator said, "for it demonstrates at this very moment the close connection between the Communist international and the Workers Party of America. The Communist international as has been shown is dominated by the Russian Communist party, and the party dominates and controls the so-called Russian Soviet Republic and the whole Russian government. In other words, the Communist propaganda in America comes directly from the government we are asked to recognize."

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Congress cleared the way today for discussion of important domestic and international issues.

Taxes and prohibition are subjects of set speeches in the house, while in the senate the question of the recognition of the soviet government of Russia was up for discussion.

With an extended debate in prospect, leaders saw little possibility of a renewal today of balloting for a chairman of the interstate commerce committee. Should such balloting come, there appeared to be no likelihood of a break in the deadlock.

Busses Start Again

Plows Open Roads to Prairie du Sac And Janesville; Fond du Lac Walled In

Bus service between Madison and Prairie du Sac and Madison and Janesville was renewed Monday after being discontinued Saturday because of drifts. The piles have been cleared away by plows.

Service between Madison and Fond du Lac probably will be renewed Tuesday. At present, heavy drifts between Beaver Dam and Fond du Lac block the line. Busses are running from Madison to Beaver Dam, however.

It will be three or four days before the road to Dodgeville will be passable, according to bus drivers.

Slot Machine Case to Come Before Court Soon

Arguments in the case brought by the state to test the legality of a certain type of slot machines manufactured by a La Crosse firm and used in more than 50 Madison business institutions are expected to be heard by Judge A. C. Hoppmann within the next two weeks. The case has been pending since late in October. It is contended by attorneys for the La Crosse firm that the machines are legitimate under Wisconsin statutes because merchandise in the form of candy mints are given in trade for each coin invested in the machines.

Trolley Stock Expansion Request Is Withdrawn

Withdrawal of an application for an authority to issue $1,500,000 in preferred stock was requested of the state railroad commission Monday by A. P. Kletzsch, president of the Milwaukee Western Electric Railway Co., in a hearing before the commission on advisability of revoking the certificate of public convenience of the company. The commission granted the request. The commission requested further information regarding the assets of the company before formal action is taken on revoking the certificate.

Venizelos, Ill, to Reject Post He Declares

Warns He Will Return to Exile Unless Another Choice Is Made

(By the Associated Press)

ATHENS—Liberals meeting here yesterday for the purpose of re-electing Venizelos as the party's leader, received a letter from the former premier, written in bed urging his partisans to choose another chieftain. He threatened to resign the presidency of the assembly to which he was chosen last Saturday and "return into exile" unless his wishes in this respect were observed. He is said to be seriously ill.

The meeting refused to proceed with the election and sent Gen. Danglis to interview Venizelos. The general returned with the promise of Venizelos that the latter would appear before the liberals when he regained his health to explain his reasons for declining to accept the leadership of the party.

Snow Clearing Forces to End Task Tuesday

Week's No-Drunk Record Ends With Arrest of 3

Superior court resumed normalcy Monday morning with the arraignment of three men charged with drunkenness. The cold weather of the past week was responsible for the dearth of drunks, according to police. The $20 bond of Peter Inkner was declared forfeited by Judge O. A. Stolen for failure to appear. Carl Jensen and Sam Peterson admitted the charges and paid fines of $5 and costs each.

Income Tax Payers Unable to Get Blanks

Tax blanks upon which individuals, corporations and partnerships will report 1923 incomes, are not ready for distribution, H. R. Briggs, county assessor of incomes, announced Monday after he had received numerous requests. The forms are in the hands of the printers and will be ready early in February.

Lenroot Will Fight O'Rourke For Collector

Will Oppose Railroad Man In Milwaukee; Schafer Takes Action

Washington Bureau,
The Capital Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C.— Another difference among members of the Wisconsin delegation over federal patronage has developed at Washington.

It was learned here today that Senator Lenroot will oppose the candidacy of John M. O'Rourke, who is seeking appointment as Collector of Customs for the port of Milwaukee and that the Coolidge administration will probably permit Senator Lenroot to name the appointee who will succeed Otto A. La Budde, the present collector.

It was said at Senator Lenroot's office today that the President had not yet requested the Wisconsin man to make a recommendation. Until the President's request is received Senator Lenroot has no intention of announcing his candidate for the office.

Senator La Follette has not been asked for a recommendation by President Coolidge and he has indicated he will not intervene in the case.

Representative John C. Shafer of Milwaukee strongly favors O'Rourke and this week accompanied the Milwaukeean to the White House where they talked with the President. Mr. Coolidge did not indicate to them what Republican he would choose.

Other Wisconsin congressmen have interested themselves in O'Rourke's candidacy but their support is not expected to have weight against the recommendation of Senator Lenroot. Strenuous efforts, however, will be made by the Progressive group in the Milwaukeean's behalf and some of the Congressmen are hopeful that the President will recognize their rights to patronage as well as those of Senator Lenroot.

The President is expected to make the appointment before the end of the month.

Germans Arrive

Relatives Of Otto Ziebarth Believe U. S. Land Of Milk And Honey,

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Adam, formerly of Berlin, Germany, believe that they have come to the land of milk and honey. They are relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Ziebarth, 2426 E. Johnson st., and have just come from a country where conditions are appalling, according to the new arrivals.

"Our entire fortune was wiped out in the fall of the mark," said Mr. Adam. "I have only worked very few days during the fall and whatever money one does earn is really of no value. We managed to live, because my wife worked, and between the two of us we got enough for a small amount of food. Suicides are a daily occurrence in Berlin and have become so common that nobody pays attention to them. There is not much chance for great improvement in the near future and thousands are coming to America if they can get in the quota."

This is the first time in thirteen years that Mrs. Ziebarth has seen her brother. Mr. Adam was a brushmaker and will attempt to find employment in his trade here. Another brother, also in Berlin, will probably come here next July.

Report Neilan, Mulhall In Fistic Battle

Director "Beaten Up" By Constance Talmadge's Leading Man

LOS ANGELES—Marshall Neilan, motion picture director, was "beaten up" by Jack Mulhall, leading man for Constance Talmadge, at a recent party in the home of Joseph Schenck, it became known on Sunday. Miss Talmadge is Schenck's sister-in-law.

Neilan, who was a guest at the party in Schenck's home, is said to have made a remark reflecting on Schenck. It was overheard by Mulhall, who said "you shouldn't say anything like that, especially about your host."

Thereupon Neilan is said to have taken off the bangle bracelet he wears on his wrist and the two men started to fight. Neilan got very much the worst of it and was led out of the home, it is said, before any of the guests knew what was happening. When he was brought back it was explained he had been hit by an automobile.

not room for more than one organization like the League of Nations.

The States outside the organized world are not of such a character that the United States could hopefully cooperate with them for the purpose named.

Therefore, the only possible path to cooperation in which the United States can take an increasing share is that which leads toward some form of agreement with the world as now organized, called the League of Nations.

By sheer force of social international gravitation such cooperation becomes inevitable.

The United States Has Already Gone Far in Cooperation With the League of Nations

The United States government, theoretically maintaining a policy of isolation, has actually gone far, since March 4, 1921, toward "cooperation with other nations to achieve and preserve the peace of the world."

The most familiar part of the story is the work of the Washington conference, wherein President Harding's administration made a beginning of naval disarmament, opened to China a prospect of rehabilitation and joined with Great Britain, Japan and France to make the Pacific ocean worthy of its name.

Later came the recommendation that the United States should adhere to the Permanent Court of International Justice.

Not long after that action President Harding wrote to Bishop Gailor:

"I do not believe any man can confront the responsibility of a president of the United States and yet adhere to the idea that it is possible for our country to maintain an attitude of isolation and aloofness in the world."

But since the proposed adhesion to the Permanent Court would bring this country into close contact at one time and point with the League of Nations, and since such action is strenuously opposed for exactly that reason, it is pertinent to inquire not only how much cooperation with the League and its organs has been proposed during the life of the present administration, but also how much has been actually begun.

Officially or Unofficially the United States is Represented on Many League Commissions

The United States government has accredited its representatives to sit as members "in an unofficial and consulting capacity" upon four of the most important social welfare commissions of the League, viz: Health, Opium, Traffic in Women and Children, and Anthrax (Industrial Hygiene).

Our government is a full member of the International Hydrographic Bureau, an organ of the League. Our government was represented by an "unofficial observer" in the Brussels Conference (Finance and Economic Commission) in 1920. It sent Hon. Stephen G. Porter and Bishop Brent to represent it at the meeting of the Opium Commission last May.

Our Public Health Service has taken part in the Serological Congress of the Epidemics Commission and has helped in the experimental work for the standardization of serums.

Our government collaborates with the League Health Organization through the International Office of Public Health at Paris, and with the Agriculture Committee of the [illegible] Labor Organization through the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome.

In February, 1923, Secretary [illegible] and President Harding [illegible] recommended that the [illegible] our adhesion to the [illegible] Court under four conditions or reservations, one of which [illegible] the United States should participate in the election [illegible] by the Assembly and [illegible] of the League, sitting as [illegible] for that purpose.

[illegible] cooperation from the [illegible] States with the work of the [illegible] membership in five [illegible] welfare commissions [illegible] of the League, in one [illegible] instruction, and in [illegible] which avert[illegible] American women serve [illegible] the Opium [illegible] Women Commission.

[illegible] in the [illegible] between them [illegible] $50,000 to support [illegible] work of the Epidemics Commission of the League [illegible] conditions of the traffic in women and children.

How Can Increasing Cooperation Between the United States and the Organized World Be Secured?

[illegible] United States being already committed to united counsels with League agencies for the common social welfare, all of which have a bearing upon the preservation of world peace, the question before us may take this form:

How can increasing cooperation between the United States and the organized world for the promotion of peace and security be assured, in forms acceptable to the people of the United States and hopefully practicable?

The United States Can Extend Its Present Cooperation With the League's Social Welfare Activities

Without any change in its present policy, already described, the United States Government could, first, show its willingness to cooperate similarly with the other humane and reconstructive agencies of the League. To four of these agencies that Government had already sent delegates with advisory powers. It could as properly accept invitations to accredit members with like powers to each one of the other welfare commissions. It has already received invitations from two of the latter.

It is, secondly, immediately practicable to extend the same kind of cooperation, whenever asked to do it, so as to include participation in the work of the commissions and technical committees of the Labor Organization. The record shows that such cooperation is already begun.

The single common purpose of all these committees is the collection and study of information on which may be based subsequent recommendations for national legislation.

All conventions and resolutions, recommended by the first three congresses of the International Labor Organization, have already been laid before the Senate of the United States and, without objection, referred to the appropriate committee. No different procedure would have been followed if the United States were a member of the Labor Organization of the League.

An Immediate Step Is Adherence to the Permanent Court

A third immediately practicable step is the Senate's approval of the proposal that the United States adhere to the Permanent Court of International Justice for the reasons and under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.

These three suggestions for increasing cooperation with the family of nations are in harmony with policies already adopted by our Government, and in the last case with a policy so old and well recognized that it may now be called traditional.

They do not involve a question of membership in the League of Nations as now constituted, but it cannot be denied that they lead to the threshold of that question. Any further step toward cooperation must confront the problem of direct relations between the United States and the Assembly and Council of fifty-four nations in the League.*

In Actual Operation the League Employs No Force

The practical experience of the League during its first three and a half years of life has not only wrought out, in a group of precedents, the beginnings of what might be called the constitutional law of the League, but it has also shifted the emphasis in activities on the League and foreshadowed important modifications in its constitution, the Covenant.

At its birth the Covenant of the League bore, vaguely in Article X and more clearly in Article XVI, the impression of a general agreement to enforce and coerce. Both of those Articles suggest the action of a world-state which never existed and does not now exist. How far the present League is actually removed from functioning as such a State is sufficiently exhibited in its dealings with Lithuania and Poland over Vilna and their common boundary, and with Greece and Italy over Corfu.

Experience in the last three years has demonstrated probably insuperable difficulties in the way of fulfilling in all parts of the world the large promise of Article X in respect to either its letter or its spirit. No one now expects the League Council to try to summon armies and fleets, since it utterly failed to obtain even an international police force for the Vilna district.

Each Assembly of the League has witnessed vigorous efforts to interpret and modify Article X. In the Fourth Assembly an attempt to adopt an interpretation of that Article in essential agreement with the Senatorial reservation on the same subject in 1920 was blocked only by a small group of weak States like Persia and Panama, which evidently attributed to Article X a protective power that it possesses only on paper.

Such States, in possible fear of unfriendly neighbors, must decide whether the preservation of a form of words in the Covenant is more vital to their peace and security, and to the peace and security of the world, than the presence of the United States at the council table of the family of nations.

As to Article XVI, the Council of the League created a Blockade Commission which worked for two years to determine how the "economic weapon" of the League could be efficiently used and uniformly applied. The Commission failed to discover any obligatory procedure that weaker Powers would dare to accept. It was finally agreed that each State must decide for itself whether a breach of the Covenant has been committed.

The Second Assembly adopted a radically amended form of Article XVI from which was removed all reference to the possibility of employing military force, and in which the abandonment of uniform obligation was directly provided for. The British Government has since proposed to weaken the form of requirement still further.

Articles X and XVI, in their original forms, have therefore been practically condemned by the principal organs of the League and are today reduced to something like innocuous desuetude. The only kind of compulsion which nations can freely engage to apply to each other in the name of Peace is that which arises from conference, from moral judgment, from full publicity and from the power of public opinion.

*Fifty-seven States, including Germany, are members of the International Labor Organization of the League. There are about sixty-five independent States in the world.

The Leadership of the United States in the New World is Obviously Recognized by the League

Another significant development in the constitutional practice of the League is the unwillingness of the League Council to intervene in any American controversy, even though all states in the New World except three are members of the League.

This refusal became evident in the Panama-Costa Rica dispute in 1921 and in the quarrel between Chile, Peru and Bolieva, a quarrel which impelled the last two States to absent themselves from the Third Assembly, wherein a Chilean was chosen to preside.

Obviously the League intends to recognize the leadership of the United States in the New World precisely as the United States claims it. This is nothing less than the observance of an unwritten law limiting the powers and duties of the League Council, defined in Article XI of the Covenant, to questions that seem to threaten the peace of the Old World. When the United States is willing to bring the two halves of the world together for friendly consideration of common dangers, duties and needs, it will be possible to secure, if it is desired, closer cooperation between the League organizations and the Pan-American Union, already a potential regional league. It is conceivable that the family of nations may eventually clearly define certain powers and duties of relatively local significance which may be developed upon local associations or union. But the world of business and finance is already unified. The worlds of scientific knowledge and humane effort are nearly so. Isolation of any kind is increasingly impossible, and world organization, already centralized, is no more likely to return to disconnected effort than the United States is likely to revert to the Calhoun theory of States Rights and Secession.

In Actual Operation, if Not in Original Conception the League Realizes the Principle and the Hopes of The Hague Conferences.

The operation of the League has therefore evolved a Council widely different from the body imagined by the makers of the Covenant. It can employ no force but that of persuasion and moral influence. Its only actual powers are to confer and advise, to creat commissions, to exercise inquisitive, conciliative and arbitral functions, and to help elect judges of the Permanent Court.

In other words, the force of circumstances is gradually moving the League into position upon the foundations so well laid by the world's leaders between 1899 and 1907 in the great international councils of that period. The Assemblies of the League and the Congresses of the International Labor Organizations are successors to the Hague Conferences.

The Permanent Court has at least begun to realize the highest hope and purpose of the Second League Conference.

The Secretariat and the Labor Office have become Continuation Committees for the administrative work of the organized world, such as the Hague Conference lacked resources to create but would have rejoiced to see.

The Council, resolving loose and large theories into cleancut and modest practice, has been gradually reconciling the League, as an organized world, with the ideals of international interdependence, temporarily obscured since 1914 by the shadows of the Great War.

No one can deny that the organs of the League have brought to the service of the forces behind those ideals an efficiency, scope and variety of apepal that in 1914 would have seemed incredible.

It is common knowledge that public opinion and official policy in the United States have for a long time, without distinction of party, been favorable to international conferences for the common welfare, and to the establishment of conciliative arbitral and judicial means for settling international disputes.

There is no reason to believe that the judgment and policy have been changed. Along these same lines the League is now plainly crystalizing, as has been shown, and at the touch of the United States the process can be expediated.

In no other way can the organized world, from which the United States cannot be economically and spiritually separated, belt the power of public opinion to the new machinery, devised for the pacific settlement of controversies between nations and standing always ready for use.

The United States Should Participate in the League's Work Under Stated Conditions.

The United States Government should be authorized to propose cooperation with the League and participation in the work of its Assembly and Council under the following conditions and reservations:

1. The United States accepts the League of Nations as an instrument of mutual counsel but it will assume no obligation to interfere with political questions of policy or internal administration of any foreign state.

The United States Will Maintain the Monroe Doctrine.

In uniting its efforts with those of other States for the preservation of peace and the promotion of the common welfare, the United States does not abandon its traditional attitude concerning American independence of the Old World and does not consent to submit its long established policy concerning questions regarded by it as purely American to the recommendation or decision of other powers.

The United States Proposes that Moral Judgment and Public Opinion Be Substituted for Force.

1. The United States will assume no obligations under Article X, in its present form in the Covenant, unless in any particular case congress has authorized such action.

The United States will assume no obligations under Article XVI, in its present form in the Covenant or in its amended form as now proposed, unless in any particular case congress has authorized such action.

The United States proposes that Articles X and XVI be either dropped altogether or so amended and changed as to eliminate any suggestion of a general agreement to use coercion for obtaining conformity to the pledges of the Covenant.

The United States Will Assume No Obligations Under the Versailles Treaty Except as Congress Approves.

III. The United States will accept no responsibility and assume no obligation in connection with any duties imposed upon the league by the peace treaties, unless in any particular case congress has authorized such action.

The United States Proposes that Membership Be Opened to Any Self-governing State.

IV. The United States proposes that Article I of the Covenant be construed and applied, or, if necessary, redrafted, so that admission to the League shall be assured by any self-governing state that wishes to join and that receives the favorable vote of two-thirds of the assembly.

The Continuing Development of International Law Must Be Provided For.

V. As a further condition of its participation in the work and counsels of the league, the United States asks that the Assembly and Council consent—or obtain authority—to begin collaboration for the revision and development of international law, employing for this purpose, the aid of a commission of jurists. This Commission would be directed to formulate anew existing rules of the law of nations, to reconcile divergent opinions, to consider points hitherto inadequately provided for but vital to the maintenance of international justice, and in general to define the social rights and duties of States. The recommendations of the Commission would be presented from time to time, in proper form for consideration, to the Assembly as to a recommending if not a lawmaking body.

Among these conditions Numbers I and II have already been discussed. Number III is a logical consequence of the refusal of the United States senate to ratify the treaty of Versailles, and of the settled policy of the United States which is characterized in the first reservation. Concerning Numbers IV and V this may be said:

Anything less than a world-conference, especially when Great Powers are excluded, must incur, in proportion to the exclusions, the suspicion of being an alliance, rather than a family of nations. The United States can render service in emphasizing this lesson, learned in the Hague conference, and in thus helping to reconstitute the family of nations as it really is. Such a conference or assembly must obviously bear the chief responsibility for the development of new parts of the law of nations, devised to fit changed and changing conditions, to extend the sway of justice, and to help in preserving peace and security.

Stoughton Man, Father Of U. W. Professor's Wife, Passes Away In Madison

STOUGHTON, Wis. — Andrew Sime, 70, a retired traveling salesman of this city, died at the Bradley Memorial hospital, Madison, on Sunday. He had been in ill health for a year or more. Funeral services will be held from the home here on N. Page st., Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, and from the Central Lutheran church directly afterward. Rev. S. Turmo will officiate.

Mrs. R. C. Blankinship, wife of Prof. Ray Blankinship of the University of Wisconsin, and Miss Ruth C. Sime, 1718 Van Hise ave., are daughters of the deceased. His wife and a son, Oliver Sime, Huntington, W. Va., also survive him.

N. Y. Bandits Invade Apartment; Get $10,000

NEW YORK—Three bandits today forced entrance into the fashionable apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Richmond, took jewels valued at $10,000 and fled. The robbery was carried out in a manner similar to that perpetrated last Thursday in the apartment of David Palter where loot of $4,000 in jewels was taken.

Sentence 3 to Death In Ukraine Jews' Massacre

MOSCOW—At Jitomir, in the Ukraine, three pogrom leaders who were responsible for the Jewish massacres three years ago were condemned to death yesterday. Among the men to be executed is the Ukrainian bandit chief, Pereliuk, who personally butchered and tortured scores of women and children in the Czerniakov pogroms.

Dittmer Opens Study Group Lectures Here

First of Series of 10 to Be given In Capitol

Prof. C. G. Dittmer of the department of sociology and economics at the University of Wisconsin, gave the first of a series of ten lectures concerning basic social problems which are confronting present day civilization in the G. A. R. hall of the state capitol Monday afternoon. The lectures are given to heads and members of departments of the state house each Monday at 4:30 o'clock and are aimed to give the serious minded some of the outstanding social problems that the people of the United States must solve during the next generations.

Monday's talk was devoted to "The Growth and Numbers of Population." America has been changed from a vast wilderness to a nation teeming with cities and cultivated fields, according to Mr. Dittmer. This change has come with amazing swiftness and has brought about social problems because of the social changes which are a natural result of this growth.

"The presence of social problems is not so important a fact as the attitude of society toward them," said Mr. Dittmer. "Once we had an advancing frontier with unlimited opportunities which that condition implied, but no longer remains. China has already reached the point of population saturation and this point is now in view in America unless we take thought for the morrow."

It is not the object of the course to present a cure for all social ills according to the speaker. In fact, it's object is not to solve any of them, but merely to define issues and point the way that a clearer and saner viewpoint may be taken. The next lecture will be given Jan. 14, on "The Quality of the Social Population."

Open Gas Jet Near Fatal to Man and Wife

Stoughton Couple Found Suffocating In Bed at 3 A. M.

STOUGHTON, Wis.—Awaking at 3 o'clock Monday morning to find the bedroom in which he and his wife were sleeping to be filled with gas, Frank Larson, Stoughton, managed to crawl to a bedroom window and shout for help, and save himself and wife from death.

C. E. Egeberg, a neighbor, heard Mr. Larson's shout for assistance and hurried into the flat to rescue the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Larson were taken to a hospital where it is reported that they are recovering. An open gas jet in a gas stove is said to have caused the escape of gas.

3 Accident Victims Are Better Today

Boy Shot In Head Has Been Unconscious 213 Hours

While Dr. James A. Jackson and attendants at the Methodist hospital are fighting for his life, Leonard Ott, 9 years old, Monroe, lies unconscious at the hospital. Leonard was brought to the hospital at 7 o'clock on Saturday night, Dec. 29, and has been unconscious since that time. He had been accidently shot in the head a few days before being brought to Madison. He was brought here when he lapsed into unconsciousness and the bullet was extracted from his brain by Dr. Jackson. Up to 4 o'clock this afternoon, Leonard had been unconscious for 213 hours.

Other persons, victims of accidents in the past week, were reported to be improving at the hospitals. John Cowden, fireman on a Northwestern road switch engine, buried under an avalanche of coal at the Monona Yards Friday afternoon, is recovering at the General hospital. Mrs. J. H. Winrich, 306 State st., is recovering from burns sustained when a coal stove exploded in her home Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Winrich is at St. Mary's hospital.

The condition of Mrs. Thomas Kaczynski, 1935 E. Johnson st., who police allege to have been beaten severely Friday noon by her husband, was reported to be favorable at the General hospital.

The annual banquet and election of officers of the Madison Turnverein society will be held Monday night at 6:15.

Virginia Valli Plays Girl of Old England

Period of 1700 Reflected In "A Lady of Quality"

The attraction that opened at the Madison yesterday, "A Lady of Quality" is beyond doubt a picture of quality. And Virginia Valli in the lead is wonderful, giving a protrayal that is even greater than that she played in "The Storm." As a woman of old England in 1700, with the same heart that a woman has whatever her time, her birth, her breeding—she is the sweet heroine of a beautiful love story. Milton Sills is the other featured player in a noteworthy cast. "Nip and Tuck" is a catchy comedy that will give you a half hour of good and hearty laughs.

Virginia Valli In "A Lady of Quality"

MELODY, COMEDY ON ORPHEUM BILL

Charles Klaus and Saul Lriliant are the hightoppers of the present Orpheum program. One of the gentlemen plays lead off man for his partner by acting and lookin. foolish and in all this tomfoolery there is much fun. The gentlemen work into a popular playing schedule where the audience suggests the pieces and they do play well enough to be called back for more of it.

Mlle. Ann Codc can speak French fluently in addition to her attractiveness and ability to toss her diminutive partner about. They have a comedy duo of three parts or which the modern marriage proposal seems to be the best and also the roughest. This act is somewhat out of the ordinary and for this and other reasons is worth attention.

The Dixie four, composed of that many colored people, sing well and dance better. Quartettes seem to be always popular and this group are not out of that classification. They end with a dance revue of shuffling steps that eased them out nicely.

Brockman and Howard do the wooden soldier imitations and others of different hues. They are fairly good, but the act seems to lack something of interest.

Oscar Martin and partner do the strong arm and slippery tumbling of this bill. They know how to do these difficult turns and agonizing muscular trials.

Clemens Belling has a family of animals who do tricks. The best by far was a hoop spinning number by one of the dogs.—H. D. S.

Mae Murray in "Fashion Row," now at the Majestic, gives a performance, that is so different from her usual run of feature. She grips you with the ardor of her acting and holds you spell-bound with her vivacity and beauty.

As a Broadway actress who marries into an old aristocratic family, Miss Murray has the opportunity to wear endless stunning gowns and delight Murray fans with the Murray dances, while the role of a plain little Russian girl who comes to America to find her sister is of striking contrast.

The supporting cast includes Earle Foxe, Freeman Wood and Elmo Lincoln. Conway and Craven are high class entertainers offering the peppiest fifteen minutes of pleasure that has been seen on any local stage for some time. Buddy Messinger in "Bucking the Lion" gives two reels of pure humor.

OPEN SEAT SALE FOR "BLOSSOM TIME"

"Blossom Time," the enchanting Franz Schubert operetta, will be the attraction at the Parkway theater on Friday and Saturday with popular priced matinee Saturday. It has had a remarkable triumph everywhere it has played.

In the original this musical play was by A. M. Willner and H. Reichert. The score is made up of music from the melodies of Franz Schubert, new Viennese music by H. Berte and a new score adapted by Sigmund Romberg.

The advance sale opened this morning for all three performances. At the night performances the prices for the main orchestra floor will be $2.50 and $2.00 plus the war tax with the balcony at $2.00—$1.50 and $1.00 plus war tax while the Saturday matinee will have the entire orchestra floor at $1.50 and the baleony at $1.00 and 50 cents plus the war tax. Mail orders will be given prompt attention if accompanied by check or money order and self addressed envelope.

LIFE OF STAGE FOLKS THEME OF DRAMA

The stage and its chorus girls, fluffy dresses and make up and the gay night life of the stage folks" behind the scene" prove to be the theme of "The Gold Diggers" which had its premiere at the Parkway yesterday afternoon and evening. The picture follows closely the lines and scenes of Avery Hopwood's play of stage life as presented by that master wizard of stage and screen—David Belasco—and the plottings of the "gold diggers" are set forth. Hope Hampton plays the part of "Jerry La Marr" a chorus girl leader of a clique of stage beauties who delight in extracting valuables from the rich young men who hang around the stage door. There are many "back stage scenes" picturesque and realistic and the titles are laugh provoking. The extra attraction is Beatrice Morelles Sextette, an all girl revue composed of six pretty attractive misses who sing, play and dance.

FISTIC HERCULES HERO OF FILM PLOT

Charles "Buck" Jones in "Big Dan" is the current feature attraction at the Strand. Its a story of a fistic Hercules who was safe until supid donned the gloves. The added features are a two act Al. St. John comedy, Col. Heeza Liar cartoon and latest news topics. Coming Wednesday, Rupert Hughes screen sensation, "Reno." The theme of the story is skillfully built about the confusing divorce situation existing in the U. S. Guy Tappan, a New Yorker, is whirled through three marriages, and on the third, when trying to gain possession of his children from his second wife, he runs into a series of serious obstacles in the shape of laws, assorted and otherwise. A thrilling love story runs throughout.

Mrs. Thompson's Advice

QUESTIONS COURTESY OF ACQUAINTANCE

Should She Have Been Invited, Asks Writer In Query To Mrs. Thompson

QUESTION OF COURTESY

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last year I taught a country school where I had to ride to and from the place on the train at very unseasonable hours. There was no house near the school. Finally I secured board halfway between the station and the schoolhouse. The woman who took me and I were very goods friends, especially after it was found that a girl chum of hers and I were high school classmates and members of the same city church. This cousin and I were always friendly but never got intimate enough to exchange calls.

While boarding with Mrs. B. that winter I became acquainted with her two brothers and sister living at the homestead near the station. I also met the sister's fiance.

In the spring the train schedule was changed so that it was more convenient to go home each day. As my mother was not well, I was anxious to live at home. This had been understood between Mrs. B. and me so that there were no hard feelings at my leaving. I sometimes stopped to call after school and we were friendly. The sister was married shortly after school closed in June. It was a big wedding, seventy five guests. It was held out of doors at Mrs. B.'s. I rather expected to be invited, but was not. I thought perhaps it was wrong in expecting it, but mother contended that I should have been. Neither was I invited to come out for a visit in vacation, although I did not accept the school again. I got a position nearer home to be with mother on account of her poor health.

Which of us is right about the invitation? Was Mrs. B. lacking in courtesy?

TEACHER

Mrs. B. was not lacking in courtesy. She was your friend while you were in her home, but after you left she was under no social obligation to you. It was quite natural that you were not invited to the wedding. Although 70 guests sound like a good many, doubtless the bride and groom found it difficult to include their closest friends and relatives in that number. Probably Mrs. B. was so busy during the summer it did not occur to her to entertain you, and even if she did think of doing so she might have had very good reasons why she could not do so. I would advise you to regard Mrs. B. as a good friend and refuse to believe that you have been slighted by her. If you knew her side of the story, I am confident you would no longer feel hurt.

A WIDOW'S QUERY

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am expecting a gentleman friend to visit me from another town. He will come a six-hour drive by auto.. I am a widow living with a maiden aunt. Would it be proper to let my friend go to the hotel for Sunday dinner if he comes on Saturday evening in his car and stays at the hotel over night? Or should I have him in our home for Sunday dinner? We have never met, but were introduced by mail by a friend of mine who is a cousin of his. I fear my aunt would not be pleased to have him here for dinner. I am twenty-seven and feel I am not entirely under her control.

CONSTANT READER

Since it would not please your aunt to entertain the gentleman for dinner, be cordial to him when you see him, but let him have dinner at the hotel. Perhaps he will invite you to dine with him, which would be quite all right.

Sistine Choir Charms With Its Harmony

Unusual Musical Organization Wins Ovation at Parkway

By E. H. S.

Sweeping through the Parkway, resounding back and forth with rising and lowering volume, full of perfect rhythm, the voices of the Sistine Chapel choir moved profoundly a fairly good audience at the Parkway Saturday. Taken individually each voice seemed to be a full unity in itself so that the entire mass of voices made a pure harmony, organ-like.

At first it seemed to us that the volume was almost too great, that it was oppressive in its force and intensity, that it was better fitted for a cathedral than a chapel or even the Parkway. Especially was this true of the first two Palestrinas.

With the exception of these two pieces the rest was for the most part soft restful with swellings that surged thru and thru one's very body. Vittoria's Tenebrae Factae Sunt (Darkness was Made) and Anerio's Requiem Aternam (Eternal Rest) were especially fine, base voices was the falsetto. The singer the soprano.

Falsetto Stars

One of the most exceptional voices was the falsetto. The singer seemed to throw his voice; he held a note with astonishing ease. His work with his companion boy singer, harmonizing and inflecting was fine.

Robed in their vestments the 50 men made an imposing scene on their first time out of Italy with the exception of a tour to Ameriva and this, their first tour to Australia. Madison was honored by the choir when it sang as a last encore the Star Spangled Banner. This is the first time that the choir has ever sung America's national anthem and it will be used as a last encore hereafter, according to the director.

The singers are on their way back to Chicago after a trip to the coast and will sail for warmer climes, their sunny Italy in two weeks.

Fairy Ginger Bread Squares—Cream one-half cup butter substitute with one cup brown sugar and one-half cup milk. Sift together two cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon ginger, add to first mixture. Spread thin with broad blade knife on greased dripping pan. Bake in a moderate oven. Cut in squares after removing from oven.

Cabbage Salad—Shred one-half head of solid white cabbage. Shred one red, one green, one yellow sweet pepper; mix together and add following salad dressing: Place one cup milk in pan, add one tablespoon butter substitute, tablespoon flour, teaspoon mustard, one-half teaspoon salt, yolk of egg and cook until thick. Remove from fire and add one-fourth cup vinegar and lastly beaten white of egg folded in. Mix with cabbage mixture, place on lettuce leaves and sprinkle with paprika.

Hamburg Pie—Make a rich biscuit crust as follows: two and one-half cups sifted flour, five teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, four tablespoons shortening, two-thirds cup milk. Mix, roll, place crust in deep pie pan, put in meat mixture, cover, cutting gash in upper crust for escaping steam. Cook one pound of hamburg steak in just enough water to cook it. Add salt, pepper, tablespoon of fat, thicken with flour, place in lined tin, cover with upper crust and bake. Serve hot with tomato sauce.

Farm Bureau Federation Plans State Meet Here

Preliminary plans for the annual convention of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation to be held here Feb. 5, are being completed by the program committee, according to I. M. Wright, state secretary. Among the leaders in farm bureau work who have been listed on the program is Goffrey Morgan, secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation. State leaders also will be included. The convention will be held during the annual Farmers' Week at the college of agriculture. A large representation from among the more than 12,000 local members in the state are expected to attend the state convention.

Theaters Here Will Not Show Mabel, Is Claim

Mabel Normand and Edna Purviance will not be seen on the screen in Madison in the near future, according to the schedules of attractions now in the hands of Madison theater managers. Agents of the film companies have been in Madison recently, but did not sell films of either of the actresses.

Miss Normand has ceased to be an attraction because of the Taylor murder notoriety, the managers state. Miss Purviance has not made many pictures. Her latest "The Woman of Paris," is now being shown in Milwaukee.

A. of C. Members to Go to Chicago Meet Jan. 21

Several members of the Madison Association of Commerce are expected to attend the North Central Division meeting of Chambers of Commerce to be held in Chicago Jan. 21-22. Don Mowry, general secretary stated that a fare and a half railroad rate, has been secured. The list of Madison men who will attend will be known in about a week.

Cities Without Dance Laws Subject to County

Cities without dance hall regulations are subject to county dance ordinances, unless specifically exempted from the act, according to an opinion given by Deputy Atty. Gen. Robert M. Rieser. Cities located in counties having a county dance ordinance are subject to the laws, in such cases, the legal department held.

Wind-Swept Monona Ice Rink In Perfect Shape As Skaters, 600 Strong, Welcome Season

Expansion of Lake Surface Damages Boathouses, Causes Rifts

Madison's 1924 skating season got under way Sunday when more than 600 persons, taking advantage of the mild weather and excellent ice, swarmed to the S. Hancock st. rink on Lake Monona. Although the city has not cleared and scraped the stretch, heavy winds Friday and Saturday swept most of the snow to the other side of the lake, leaving the ice in excellent shape.

Slight earth tremors followed expansion and cracking of ice on Lake Monona at 5 and 10 o'clock Sunday morning, according to Mrs. William Wirka at the Wirka Boat Line Co. A number of small boathouses and the large beatholse owned by the Wirka company were twisted from their foundation posts by the expanding ice when it piled up. One of the larger cracks in the ice is said to be nine feet wide.

The Association of Commerce has ordered high powered lights and reflectors mounted on posts at each corner of the rink, and when the winter sports week program is held, the racing events at night can be witnessed by all spectators. These lights will be up all during the skating season and will reduce danger of accidents.

The Wirka Boat Co., has thrown open its doors to skaters. Hot coffee and sandwiches are served, and a checking room has also been installed. The Wirka rink, designated as the official skating place for the city, will be cleared after every snow.

May Rule On Republican Delegate Case

Question of Additional Convention Delegates Arises

Possibility that the question of procedure in electing three additional delegates to the national Republican convention as allotted by the national committee, may go to the supreme court for a decision, was expressed by officials of the secretary of state's office Monday.

The attorney general's department has been engaged for over a week in preparing an opinion on the question of procedure, since the state primary election law provides for only four delegates-at-large from the state. Numerous methods have been suggested to the department for solving the question. Among the proposals are: election of the additional delegates by the state central committee; admission of additional names on a separate ballot, and electors be instructed to vote for seven candidates instead of four as provided on the regular ballot.

Which ever way the attorney general advises, it is declared to be probable that the secretary of state may carry the question to the supreme in a friendly suit to settle legality of the procedure and prevent a contest of the election. Progressive leaders of the state who are scheduled to be here this week for a series of conferences, are expected to give consideration to the additional delegate question.

Gideons Elections

Adam Hill Made New Chief Of Madison Gideon Camp

Sam E. Hill was elected president of Madison camp, No. 1, of the Gideons at a meeting held Sunday afternoon at the home of Walter P. Holmes, 502 S. Baldwin st. Mr. Hill was one of the three organizers of the society in Janesville. Other officers named were: Walter P. Holmes, vice president; D. D. Foxwell, secretary; B. B. Billings, treasurer; J. M. Critton, chairman of the membership committee.

Another meeting will be held in the Baptist church parlors, Feb. 3.

E. V. McGregor Honored By Mystic Workers For Efforts

E. V. McGregor, 204 Bernard ct., district manager of the Mystic Workers, was awarded the special field workers' prize for the month of December, a check for $100, it was announced Monday from the lodge headquarters at Fulton, Ill. The check was in recognition for his service in securing the largest number of new members and transfers of Class "A" members. Mr. McGregor added 55 members, including some transfers. The Madison lodge now has 312 members.

Taxicab Lines Unable to Supply Heavy Demands

The first five days of the year 1924 were the busiest in the history of the taxicab business in Madison, local taxi line managers assert. With most motorists leaving their own cars in garages for the winter, or at least during the cold snap, cab companies experienced a rush of business that it was almost impossible to accommodate.

"We have never experienced such a continuous demand for service at any time as we experienced the first five days of this year," said C. C. Ossman, manager of the Yellow Cab Co. in Madison. "We have been using 26 cabs day and night during this period, but demands were so great for the machines that we were unable to give immediate service to anybody."

A check of other cab lines, The Checker, Red Top, College and Wurth, revealed that the rush was general. Requests for cabs were subject to delays of one hour or more.

Tragedy In Lives of 2 Varsity Graduates In Quarles Suicide

Mrs. Henry C. Quarles.

Henry C. Quarles.

Tragedy has come into the lives of two graduates of the university.

The tragedy centers around the suicide of Henry C. Quarles in Milwaukee last week. Mr. Quarles was a member of the class of 1909 at the university. He was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. He was a nephew of the late former U. S. Senator Joseph V. Quarles.

Mr. Quarles married a university girl, Miss Cosalette Elliott, a member of the class of 1908. Mrs. Quarles came to the university from Kansas City. She was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority here.

Despondency due to continued illness brought about the Quarles suicide.

Fireman Recovers

Adolph Uherr, Near Victim Of Fire Truck Crash Improves

FT. ATKINSON, Wis. (Special)—Improvement in the condition of Adolph Uherr, one of the firemen injured three weeks ago Sunday afternoon when the fire pumper on which he was racing to a fire near Cambridge, left the road, was reported by hospital attendants Monday.

"I have every reason to believe that Mr. Uherr will recover from his injuries," said Dr. E. J. Majerus who is caring for him. "The report that Mr. Uherr has been continuously unconscious since the accident is untrue. It is true, however, that Mr. Uherr has been subject to periods of delirium."

XXIII (continued)

He ground his teeth, but he was master of himself again and had no intention to make the mistake of sulking. The situation put him on his mettle. He led the conversation and did practically all the talking: as if the vital youth in him, stimulated by music and champagne (which the older men were forced to imbibe sparingly), must needs pour forth irresistibly—and impersonally. He was not jealous of Dinwiddie or Osborne (although the black frown on the latter's brow was sufficient evidence of a deeply personal resentment), and although he did not flash Madame Zattiany a meaning glance, might indeed have sat at her board for the first time, he knew that he had never made a better impression. Her eyes, which had been heavy and troubled as they took their seats at the table, and as old as eyes could be in that perfect setting, began to look like a gray landscape illumined by distant flashes of lightning. Before long they were full of life, and response, and laughter. And pride? There was something very like pride in those expressive orbs (not always as subject to her will as she fancied), as they dwelt on the brilliant young journalist whose mind darted hither and thither on every subject he could summon that would afford the opportunity of witty comment. He even quoted himself—skipping the past two months—and what had been evolved with much deliberation and rewriting sounded spontaneous and pertinent. But in truth he was so genuinely stimulated before the brief hour was over that when he returned to his rooms he wrote his column before turning in. He felt as if fiery swords were playing about his mind, flashing out words and phrases that would make his brother columnists, no sluggards in words and phrases themselves, green on the morrow. For the moment he was quite happy, as he always was when his mind was abnormally quickened, and he dismissed women and their infernal whims to limbo.

When he awoke at two o'clock in the afternoon his brain felt like the ashes of a bonfire and his spirits were a leaden weight. He knew what was to be expected of reaction, however, and after his punch bag and showers he felt better. He'd see her today and force some sort of understanding.

But when he opened his door and saw a letter in her handwriting, and evidently delivered by a servant, as it was unstamped, his hand shook and his half-recovered confidence fled. This time he made no attempt at the farce of self-discipline; he opened it at once. When he saw that it began without formality he drew a longer breath.

"I am not going to see you until Saturday," it read, "when I hope you will take me to Miss Dwight's party. Meanwhile I shall ask you not to see Mr. Dinwiddie nor any one else likely to discuss me. I shall not care to stay long at the party and if you will return here with me I will tell you my secret, such as it is. I shall only say here that I had no intention of making a mystery of myself, for I did not expect to exchange a word with any one in America but Judge Trent and his business associates. I came to America for one purpose only, to settle my affairs, which would have dragged on interminably if I had not been here to receive my alienated properties in person. I know many people in New York, but I had no idea of seeing any of them, although tempted on account of the money they might help me to collect for the children of Austria. But I had decided to leave that until the last minute. I not only was no longer interested in these old friends of mine, but I disliked the explanations I should be forced to give them, the comments, the curiosity, the endless questions. What I mean by this you will know on Saturday night.

"But it is not the first time in my life that I have discovered the futility of making plans. My meeting with you and the profound interest you have awakened has upset all calculations. I expected nothing less! If I had I should have told you the truth the night we met. But it never occurred to me for an instant that I could love any man again. I had done with all that years ago, and my intention was to give my life and my fortune to certain problems in Europe which I shall not bore you with here.

"Possibly if I had met you casually with Judge Trent, or if I had not chosen to avoid my old friends and met you at one of their houses, as I might easily have done, I should have made no mystery of myself; if indeed you did not know the truth already.

"But not only the curious circumstances of our meeting after your weeks of silent devotion, but your own personality, quickened to life a flicker of youthful romance so long moribund that I had forgotten it had ever been one of my lost inheritances. I was also both amused and interested, and to play a little comedy with you was irresistible. It did not occur to me for a moment that you would fall in love with me.

"It was not until the second time you came here after the theatre that I realized what was happening in those submerged cells of mine. But I could not make up my mind to tell you that night—nor the next. By that time I was frightened. I feared there could be only one result. I suppose all women are cowards when in love. But I knew that this could not last, and when you asked me to sit in Mrs. Oglethorpe's box I thought the time had come to precipitate matters. After a decisive step like that I could not retreat. But I wish to tell you myself, and for that reason I have asked you to discuss me with no one until we meet. It will probably be the last time I shall see you, but I am prepared for that.

"I shall see Jane Oglethorpe today. She has been very loyal and I think she will forgive me. It would not matter much if she did not, and possibly would save me a good deal of boredom, but after last night an explanation is due her.

"When he returned to his rooms he wrote his column before turning in."

"And after Saturday night, mon ami, matters will be entirely in your hands. You will realize whether you have merely been dazzled and fascinated or whether there is really between us that mysterious bond that no circumstances can alter. Such things have happened to men and women if we may believe history, but I have had too good reason to believe that it is not for me. However—at least for a brief time you have given me back something of the hopes and illusions of youth. This in itself is so astonishing that whatever the result I shall never be able to forget you.

"Until Saturday.

"M."

Clavering's immediate act was to dash off a love-letter more impassioned than any he had ever dreamed himself capable of writing, vowing that he was dazzled and fascinated, God knew, but that he loved her with the love of his life and would marry her if she would have him, no matter what her revelations. And with what patience he could muster and with no grace whatever he would make no attempt to see her until Saturday night. But she must believe that he loved her and she must write at once and tell him so. He could not exist throughout that interminable interval unless she wrote him at once that she believed in the existence and the indissolubility of that bond, and that he had given her the highest and deepest and most passionate love of which man was capable, and which no woman but she could inspire, for no woman like her had ever lived.

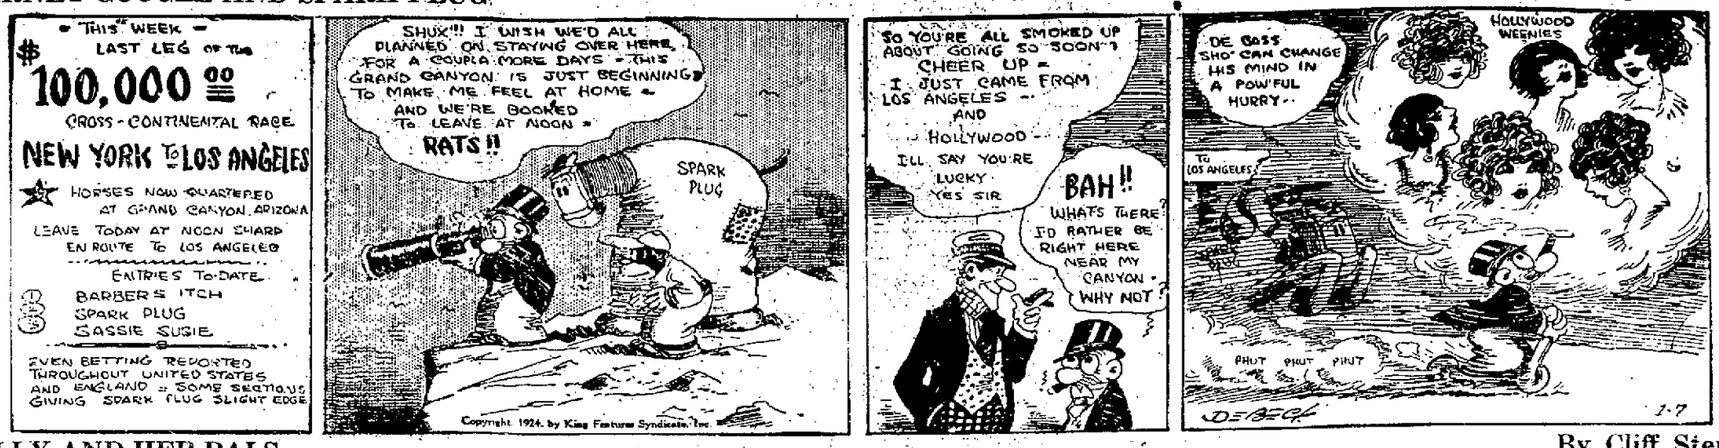

He dared not read it over. He had never let himself go before, and he had written too much for print not to be self-conscious and critical of even a love-letter intended only for concordant eyes. Nevertheless, he was aware even in his excitement that the more reckless it was the surer its effect. No edited love-letter ever yet hit its mark. (He remembered Parnell's love-letters, however, and devoutly hoped his own would never see the light.) The waiter entered at the moment, and he gave him the missive, hastily addressed and sealed, and asked him to tell the "desk" to send it immediately and give the boy orders to wait for an answer.

He drank his coffee, but ate nothing. Nor did he open his newspapers. He strode up and down his rooms or stood at the window watching the hurrying throngs, the lumbering green busses, the thousand automobiles and taxis over on Fifth Avenue. They were as unreal as a cinema. He had the delusion, common to lovers, that Earth was inhabited by two people only—that brief extension of the soul which in its common acceptance of eternal loneliness looks out upon the world as upon a projected vision in which no reality exists, for man the dreamer is but a dream himself. Phantasmagoria!

Uncle Wiggily's Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD GARIS

(Copyright, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BOB SLED

"Nurse Jane, can you tell me where to find an old pair of my trousers, and a ragged coat?" asked Uncle Wiggily in the hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Old trousers and a ragged coat?" exclaimed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "What in the world do you want of them? Are you going to put out the ashes, or is there a tramp dog at the back door?"

"Neither one!" laughed the bunny rabbit gentleman. "But I am going coasting on the snow hill with my bob sled, and I want to wear my old clothes so I won't spoil my good ones. That's all!"

Nurse Jane was so surprised that she sat down in a hurry—she also sat down in a chair, for a hurry is not a very good place to sit. And, it is lucky a chair was right near where Nurse Jane sat down or, otherwise, or she might have sat on the floor.

"You aren't really going bob sled coasting, are you, Uncle Wiggily?" asked the muskrat lady faintly.

"Yes, I really am," answered the bunny. "The snow is so smooth now and I have just been watching the animal boys and girls coast, so I want to have some of that kind of fun."

"Well, I only hope nothing happens," sighed the muskrat lady. "I'll see if I can find you some old clothes."

"That's fine!" cried Uncle Wiggily, as Nurse Jane left the room. And the bunny felt so happy that he almost stood on the end of his pink, twinkling nose.

"There you are, Uncle Wiggily," spoke Nurse Jane, as she came down out of the attic with the old clothes. "But I hope nothing happens. If you fall off the sled, though, you can't do much harm to these things—goodness knows, they're old enough."

"Well, I may fall off my bob sled," chuckled the bunny as he went to dress in the old things.

"But where is your bob sled?" Nurse Jane wanted to know. "You haven't had one since you were a little boy rabbit, many years ago. What are you going to do for a bob sled?"

"I am going to make one," answered the bunny. "If you will let me take your large ironing board I'll soon make a bob sled for myself."

"Get off!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes, you may take the board," Nurse Jane answered, "but I don't see how you can make a bob sled of it."

"I'll show you," offered Uncle Wiggily, and in a little while he had fastened some wooden runners under each end of the long ironing board, making himself a pretty good bob sled.

"Now I'll go out on the coasting hill and have some fun," said the bunny gentleman. Off he hopped, dragging his home-made bob sled after him. Nurse Jane watched him from the window.

"I don't see what's getting into Uncle Wiggily," sighed the muskrat lady. "He seems to grow younger every day—and more kiddish like. The idea of going bob sled coasting at his age! But I suppose he must do something besides twinkle his pink nose."

Just as the bunny gentleman had said, he had seen the animal boys and girls coasting on the snowy hill, and it made him feel as if he, too, wanted some of that fun. He saw Sammie and Susie Littletail, the rabbits, tumble off their coasting sled.

"I can do that, too!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, as Sammie and Susie jumped on their sled again and went whizzing to the bottom of the hill.

Thus it happened that Uncle Wiggily had gone home and made himself a bob sled. And now he was back with it on the coasting hill. As it happened all the animal boys and girls had gone away to school, so the bunny gentleman had the hill to himself.

"I'll practice a bit all alone," thought Uncle Wiggily, "and then when school is out and the boys and girls come back I can coast as well as they. Now for a start."

Uncle Wiggily took Nurse Jane's ironing board bob sled up to the top of the hill, sat down on it—he sat down on the bob sled, I mean—and gave himself a push. Down he whizzed to the bottom of the hill.

"Ah, that was wonderful! I'll do it again!" cried the bunny. And he did. Up to the top of the hill he went once more. "I'll go down again!" said Uncle Wiggily as he sat down on his sled. "This time I am going very fast!"

"Yes, and this time I am going to nibble your ears!" cried a voice, and out of the bushes at the top of the hill leaped the Fuzzy Fox. The Fox made a jump for Uncle Wiggily, but the bunny gave his bob sled a push and started down the hill.

"But you can't get away from me!" howled the Fox. He made a flying leap and perched himself on the back end of the ironing board bob sled.

"Get off!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"No! No!" howled the Fox.

"Yes! Yes!" cried the bunny. "If you don't get off I'll make the sled go so fast that the wind will blow you off!"

"You can't!" howled the Fox.

"Yes, I can!" said the bunny. So he gave the sled a hard push. Down the hill it went—faster, faster, faster! The wind whistled in Uncle Wiggily's ears. Then the wind blew harder, harder, harder! And, all of a sudden it blew the bad Fox right off the back end of the bob sled and into a snow bank.

"Ho! Ha! I told you so!" laughed Uncle Wiggily.

Wow! Wow! Wow! howled the Fox, his nose full of snow.

Then the Police Dog drove the Fox away and Uncle Wiggily had a good time coasting, and he only fell off the sled once. And when the animal boys came down from school they cried:

"Hurray for Uncle Wiggily!"

So every one was happy except the Fox, for he didn't deserve to be. And if the electric light doesn't go out in the snow and sneeze like a firefly catching cold, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the big ball.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

WILLIAM'S GREED FOR GOLD

Besides his other bad points, King William was greedy for gold. Before he came to England, the English had been in the habit of paying money to the Danes to keep away. This payment was called the Danegold. To raise it, special taxes were collected.

Now there was no longer any danger from the Danes, but William still collected those taxes. He kept the money for himself.

Even with this extra money, the new king did not think he had enough. He decided he would have a big book made, and that it should contain a record of all the land and other property in England. Then he could do more taxing.

An English writer of that time says:

"He sent out his men to every shire in all England. There was not a yard of land or an ox or a cow or a pig which was not written down."

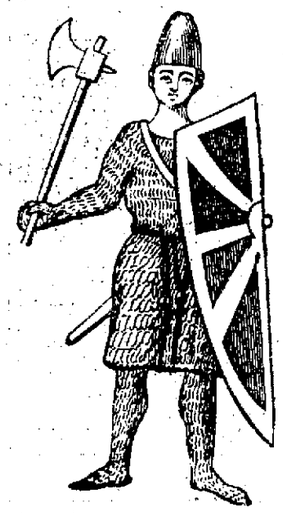

This record was called the Domesday Book, which means "the book of the day of doom."

It meant "doom" to many of earls and knights and abbots. To raise this money, the common people had to work harder on the land of their masters.

William did not care to spend all his time in England. You have heard of one trip he made back to France. Twenty years after he had become king of England, he went back again.

The ruler of France at that time was Philip the First. He made a jest about his visitor which William didn't like.

As a revenge, William told his men to burn the town of Nantes. That was his last cruel act. He rode boldly between the burning houses.

A Norman knight with large shield and battle-ax.

His horse shied and he was hurled against the pommel of his saddle. He was hurt so badly that he died.

William's body was to be buried on some land in Normandy, which he had given to a group of monks. After the grave was dug, a knight stepped forward and cried:

"I forbid you to bury this robber here! He took this land away from my father."

The knight was paid for the land and the burial took place.

The Story of an Artist's Wife

As Told to Grace Phelps

BARCLAY AND VERA RETURN

"Vera and Barclay have come back?" I cried faintly.

"Yes," said Jack. "Douglas phoned me just a few minutes before I left home." His detective was at the station ready to take the train to Chicago, where he saw them. They were getting off the Western train."

I was dumbfounded at this news. "How did the detective recognize them?" Inez wanted to know.

Jack looked uneasily at me.

"Photographs," he said briefly. "I collected some snapshots and other photographs and gave them to Douglas. It is just part of the game!"

But I was not interested in such details.

"Why did they come back?" I asked, my chief fear uppermost. "Do you suppose Barclay has heard?" My voice failed me.

"Oh, no!" Jack hastened to reassure me. "He could not possibly have heard. No one outside ourselves, Victor and the doctor know anything about it."

I lay back weak and trembling from the shock. I had counted at least on being spared the sight of either Barclay or Vera until the divorce should come up in court.

Kate understood my distress.

"I had hoped that they would stay where they had gone—the farther away the better!" she said fiercely, and then, more gently, to me.

"You won't have to see anything of them, Honey!" she said. "Barclay Radcliffe will make himself mighty scarce around here or I'll know the reason why."

Her eyes flashed belligerently, but Jack held up a warning hand and she said no more. I could see that she was with difficulty restrained from going on the warpath, and my old fears for Barclay's safety returned.

"Promise me you won't go near him!" I begged. "Let Jack tell him to keep out of the way. He would only insult you if you went to see him!"

Kate gave in reluctantly.

"You needn't think it is because I am afraid of him or his insults!" she said. "But if it will make you feel easier in your mind, I promise. Anyway," she concluded with satisfaction, "Jack means to horsewhip him! I am perfectly willing to leave it in his hands!"

Behind her back, Jack made a reassuring gesture toward me.

"I will go around to the studio tonight," he said, "and tell Barclay he would better move up town. I will have to ask Douglas first before I mention the divorce, for I don't want to queer things."

"You needn't worry about seeing Vera!" he went on. "I will put it up to Barclay very strongly. The only decent thing for them to do is to keep out of your way. And I think we can count on him to that extent!"

He looked at his watch and reached for his hat.

Banks To Elect

Madison Financial Institutions To Hold Elections This Month

Many Madison banks and other financial institutions will elect officers and directors at their annual meetings Tuesday, Jan. 8. Among these are the First National bank and Central Wisconsin Trust companies, bank of Wisconsin, State bank, Capital City bank, American Exchange bank, Randall State bank, South Side State bank, and Savings Loan and Trust Co.

The Commercial Trust Co. will meet Wednesday, Jan. 9, and the Commercial National bank on Thursday, Jan. 10. The Security State bank meeting will be held Jan. 16, and the Bank of the Commonwealth on Jan. 15.

Assault and battery charges preferred against William Hansley by J. J. McManamy were dismissed from superior court by Judge A. C. Hoppmann Friday afternoon after a jury of six men to try the case had been drawn.

"Strangler" Lewis Arrested After Wrestling Match

WICHITA, Kan.—Ed. "Strangler" Lewis, champion heavyweight wrestler, was arrested here last night after his match with Dick Daviscourt on an assault and battery charge on complaint of William Goodell, whom Lewis struck as he was on the way to his dressing room after the first fall.

When the champion left the ring after succumbing to one of Daviscourt's headlocks, the crowd hooted and booed him. Lewis was taken to the police station and booked, after which Goodell withdrew his charges on learning that the blow was unintentional. Goodell denies he hissed or hooted the champion.

The match went three falls, Daviscourt winning the first in 1 hour and 6 minutes with a headlock, and Lewis the other two in 4 minute and 1 minute, respectively.

Gotham to Be Host to Y. W. C. A. In Spring

New York has been chosen for the national convention of Y. W. C. A. next spring. The dates of the convention have been set for April [illegible] May 6, and the Hotel Commodore [illegible].

Mrs. Robert E. Speer has been elected president of the National Board. Mrs. Speer said that the present budgets of American Y. W. C. A. work total is over 25 billion yearly. Foreign work supplied by American Associations' funds are included in these total figures.

Founded in 1906 from a union of two organizations, dating back to 1871 and 1886, respectively, national members has grown from less than 150,000 girls and young women to over 525,000. More than 2,000 delegates representing 1,046 associations are expected.

Toggery Shop Trims Y.M.C.A. Quintet 37-21

Clothiers Have Fast Team; Triangles Play Hard

Coach Loren Cockrell's Triangles dropped a hard fought basketball game to the Toggery Shop five at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night 37 to 21. The game was closely fought throughout and only in the final quarter did the visitors obtain a comfortable lead.

The game was won only by the remarkably good playing of all the members of the Toggery five and several individuals were the outstanding features of the game. "Pinkey" Stehr, former Wisconsin high school forward and now playing with the Freshmen, was the main attraction of the tilt with his speed, accurate shooting and wonderful defensive playing.

"Schwartz" Holzworth, Wisconsin high center and ineligible for that team until the semester ends also played a neat and bright game, his shots, of which six were good for markers, were well aimed by the Dean man.

The lineup and summary:

Greek Chapters Older Than United States

One hundred and seventy-six years ago, sororities and fraternities came into existence in this country. Nine years later fraternity life began to stir on this campus with one chapter.

The system since its beginning, more than a century and three-quarters ago, has embraced some 700,000 members. At the present day 500,000 are wearing pins. It is estimated that 40,000 are initiated every year. Honorary societies can boast of one-third of them.

Approximately 200 fraternities and sororities with 4,500 chapters are existing in 660 colleges and universities throughout the country. Of the rest, 2,600 occupy college homes and 1,100 houses of their own, which fact means that today 60,000 college men and women are living in homes of their own.

The total cost of the houses owned by the members themselves is estimated at $21,000,000.

Alf Jansen Wins Trial Jump On Carry Slide

CARY, Ill.—Alf Jansen of the Norge Ski club, with a total of 230 points, was the winner of the trial ski jump contest here yesterday. Eighteen entrants in the international ski jumping contest, which will be held here Jan. 20, under the auspices of the Norge Ski club, took part in the trials.

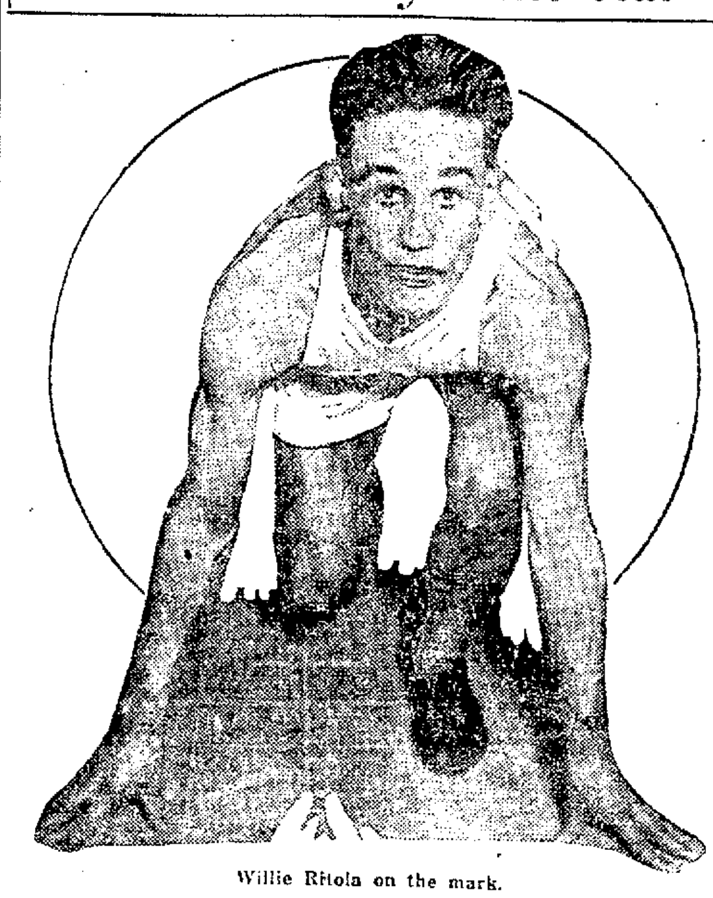

Haugen, Hansen, Overly and Ontvedt Chosen

MINNEAPOLIS—Anders Haugen and Hans Hansen of Minneapolis, Sigurd Overly of St. Paul and Regner Omtvedt of Grand Beach, Mich., were selected as members of the United States Olympic Ski team.

In final preparation for their first conference meet of the season at Iowa next Saturday, Coach Joe Steinauer's squad of swimmers will hold time trials during the first part of this week.

After a long session of practice, lasting during the fall and early winter, the varisty team is rounding into fair form for the season. The meet with the Hawkeyes will be the acid test for the Badger fish, and after that meet, fans will have something on which to judge the chances for a conference championship.

Native Country Calls Star

Willie Ritola on the mark.

When the starting gun is fired in the distance running events in the coming Olympic games Willie Ritola, the little Finnish lad who ranks as the best man at his game in the United States, will be running against Uncle Sam's other stars. For he has decided to return to Finland and represent his native land at the Paris games next summer. It is probable Ritola could not have represented the U. S., as he is not yet a naturalized citizen. But his presence on the Finnish team will give that country a big edge in the distance events.

Roundy Says:

Beating Indiana Was A Real Stunt For "Doc" Meanwell's Team!

Diedbold starring in that Indiana game sure is sweet music to the lovers of the game at Wisconsin.

The day after the Franklin defeat he sure was broken hearted. He asked me what I thought was the matter. Diebold in the Franklin game played great ball, but the forwards got back of him in these last ten minutes as I said before in this column. That fault is very easy corrected and I knew as soon as I left him that he was going to be a big star Saturday night, as Franklin beating them sent this boy Diebold on the war path.

The whole Wisconsin team sure did great work in this Indiana game and the boys should bet a world of credit for their work. Gibson came out of his high school playing stuff and put on a varsity game at Indiana that sent them home talking to themselves. Gibson was all over and showing the folks in Indiana something about basketball. Atta boy Gibson.

Beating Indiana is a pretty good feat and the students should feel mighty proud of the team work. Meanwell, Spooner, Varney, Gibson, Elsom and Barwig should get a world of credit for this win, I for one figured the boys were about due to get beat.

They say that Nyikos of Indiana shot four baskets from the center of the hall and two others farther than that. Outside of that they say he had a bad night, goodnight.

That basket that Barwig made when sent in they say was the camel's hump for class. They say he looked like a million dollars while in there. They sure watched Spooner. What he got he earned. They hung on him like an old maid on a bacelor' arm. This win sure is a fine thing to start off with and the team and Meanwell should get a lot of credit.

Don't forget to get your tickets to that bowling match to be held here at Tony Schwoegler's alleys next Sunday. The Mineralites of Chicago will bowl five men events. Gotch, Nelson, Both Pinned To Mat By Rough House Shipp

"Roughhouse" Shipp, Oklahoma middleweight wrestling champion, seeking bouts here, has a record against well known mat men that will warrant him good backing should he go on independently as it is reported that he might do.

Young Gotch, grappler who has performed here against Jimmy Demetral, Johnny Meyers and others, was thrown with ease by Shipp in seven minutes (two falls). The first fall came in three minutes and the second in four.

Bulldog Nelson, another wrestler who has been in action here before lost to Shipp. There are numerous other well known mat men as well known as the two mentioned above who were forced to acknowledge Shipp's superiority.

Shipp is trying to get on the next mat card here, and in the event that he is not on it, a group of individual promoters here are planning to get him started.

Big Skating Year On Lakes Here Expected

Outlook for a big season is anticipated in skating this year. Lake Monona which closed New Year's day is again the rendezvous for the many skaters who enjoy the winter pastime.

The Wirka rink which has afforded skating to the public for several years, is again the most popular in the city. The ice is very good for skating and estimated at being eight inches thick.

The Four Lakes athletic club comprising the city's leading blade artists are busy laying out their schedule for meets with out of town skaters and also plans are underway to stage races every week. Instructors to teach beginners is also proposed by the club.

Paul Prehn Brings Mat Titles to Illinois University

URBANA, Ill.—Since the advent of Coach Paul Prehn, the wrestling game is on the boom at the University of Illinois. In 1920, his first year, Prehn's wrestlers won all their meets and copped the Conference title. The championship was won again in 1921. Since Prehn took charge the Illinois grapplers have lost only three dual meets and have been victorious in 18.

As a nucleus for the 1924 team, Prehn has only three letter men—one now ineligible. Johnny Player, of West Chicago, middleweight, is captain. A year Johnny won five out of his six conference bouts and took second honors in the western intercollegiate tournament.

Despite the coming of King Winter, skiing activities still remain at a standstill, because of inablity of the Badger Ski club to get the funds necessary to put the slide in shape for jumping. This is because of the poor attendance at the tournament which was held here last year when the weather was below zero.

The thing most needed is a truck for a day to haul snow so that the slide may be put in shape for jumping. If this could be taken care of the club would depend upon the coming tournament on Feb. 9 to raise other necessary funds. The Badger Ski club is not connected with the athletic department of the university, and hence does not depend upon it for financial support.

The Badger Ski club which was organized in 1919 is now composed of fifteen members who are vitally interested in skiing. An active interest in the sport and attendance at the university sometime or other are the only requirements for membership.

Cubs To Carry 31 Vets And Recruits on Training Squad

CHICAGO—Thirty-one veterans and youngsters will compose the spring training squad of the Chicago Nationals when they leave next month for Catalina island. In addition to the active athletes there will be the coaching staff consisting of Oscar Dugey, Killifer's chief lieutenant, and Ivory Jack Doyle and Bobby Wallace, Cub scouts. Grover Alexander will probably have charge of the young pitchers as he has in the past.

Killifer said he would not "carry any untried material to camp aside from a few pitchers and one catcher, Churry, from the London, Mint club. Most of the youngsters, he said, were "looked over" last fall.

Killifer plans at the present to call for 13 pitchers, four catchers, which include the manager himself, three first basemen, seven other infielders and five outfielders.

"Dakota Clyde Dow" In Search of Mit Opposition

When the Madison Athletic association stages a fight card here soon, friends of "Dakota Clyde Dow," Sioux Falls, want to see their favorite climb into the ropes and exchange blows with some heavyweight. Dow tips the scales at 198 pounds and has performed in the ring on several occasions.

His friends say that he can give and take with any of them, and would like to see him in action here.

Although it is doubtful whether the Madison Athletic association is intending to book heavyweights, there is a probability of arranging a bout between the Dakota Larricane and some other ambitious mit artist.

Barring Sport Writers Perils Gotham Boxing

NEW YORK—More than half of the working newspaper men in New York are now barred out of the Madison Square Garden press box by the ruling of the boxing commission that seats near the judges on two sides of the ring can not be occupied.

The action is seen as an attempt to "get" Tex Rickard as well as to retaliate for criticisms of the commission by most of the boxing writers. As a result it is understood that a state assemblyman is preparing a bill to stop boxing.

Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Northwestern All Beaten

The Big Ten basketball championship race got underway Saturday night in one of the wildest starts ever recorded in conference annals—the dope holding true only in one case, when Wisconsin copped a 23 to 21 tilt from Indiana. The rest of the games caused dopesters heads to whirl, and although some of the contents were again non-conference aggregations, some ideas of what can be expected during the season, was brought to light.

Marquette Beats Iowa

Perhaps the biggest upset was Marquette's victory over Sam Barry's Iowa quintet 21 to 20, in which the Milwaukee school after trailing the Hawkeyes for a good share of the game, came back strong in the second half and copped in the final moments of play.

Illinois Five Loses

Minnesota's victory over Illinois at Minneapolis by a 36 to 20 count was another terrible upset. Illinois, rated alongside of Iowa and Wisconsin was doped to trim the Gophers handily, but the final result shows that Dr. Cook's team is one to be feared this season.

Michigan Loses Too

Michigan university encountered plenty of trouble at South Bend, Ind., where the Notre Dame aggregation took a 29 to 25 score game. It was necessary to play two overtime periods. At the end of the regular 40 minutes of play the count was 19-19.

Yale Beats Northwestern

At Evanston, the Northwestern cagers, who although not considered dangerous contenders in the conference, always furnish stubborn opposition, lost to Yale 34 to 13. Northwestern was the first "Big Ten" team in three to be defeated by Old Eli cagers.

Purdue Cops 35 to 24

Chicago and Purdue mixed in a fast encounter Saturday night, and the Maroons, whose stock had jumped because of their victory over Yale, lost to Purdue 35 to 24.

My Winning Plays

By Dr. Walter E. Meanwell

COACH UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN (WESTERN CONFERENCE CHAMPIONS)

Copyright, 1923, Sol Metzger

PLAY NO. 11

GUARD UP ON OPPOSITE SIDE, FORWARDS CROSS.

Most plays give the tip-off to a player on his own side of the floor. It is good strategy, therefore, to occasionally cross the player over to the opposite side for the ball from center. This principle is followed in Play No. 11, coupled with a shifting of both forwards across the floor.

Center, No. 3, tips-off backwards and to the side (A) and then leaves the circle on the side opposite the ball (B). Left guard, No. 4, crosses the floor (C) and secures the ball high in the air, preferably with his right hand and continues on (D) with a fast dribble towards the basket. No. 4 frequently can secure a short shot from the play.

Right forward, No. 2, crosses the floor before the ball is tapped in center in the hope of drawing his guard out of position, and also to be in the open left forward position (E), for pass or rebound.

Left forward, No. 1, drives down (F) at top speed to replace left guard, No. 4, and in time to cover his opponent. If the tip-off is secured and the play progresses, No. 1 reverses and trails the play (G) up the middle of the floor as safety man.

Right guard, No. 5, tries to interfere with his opponent forward (X5) so as to delay the latter should he dash toward the tip-off. This is done by suddenly stepping in front of and across the path of (X5), so that the latter must run around No. 5. This practically insures the safety of the back tip-off.

If left guard No. 4, finds his dribble checked he can pass to the left to No. 2, No. 3 or No. 1, or he can shoot.

Meanwell Explains The Free Shot To Readers

By Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, Copyright, 1924.

THE FREE SHOT

Foul shooting is an individual and unapposed effort entirely at variance with any other phase of basketball. Under the rules of previous years the free shooter was an altogether too important factor, along with the referee, much to the detriment of the game. Basketball, when played well, is essentially a team game. Team play and strenuous individual effort against opposition are the desired bases for successful offense. This is properly represented in terms of goals from the field. When, therefore, a player becomes the most important factor in the offense of his team, through the frequent scoring of unapposed shots, most of which were awarded for fouls on other players, this phase of the game is at fault. The change of rules for this season to require each player to shoot the free shots awarded for fouls committed on him—a rule long and satisfactorily employed in the professional game—was a distinct advance. The free shot has now become a team rather than an individual event. Further changes in the rules to lessen the frequency of the free shot—the least interesting play in the game and the most prominent—are much to be desired.

Styles in free shooting may be likened to styles in batting. They differ according to the individual and are uniform only in a general way. There is no one best way to stand, to pose, or to throw. Again, as in batting, some men can and others can not become more than ordinarily successful. Much depends upon the "natural eye" or nicety of coordination between eye, nerve and muscle. Temperament also plays a part. The high strung boy does the best on the whole but he goes badly astray at times when ridden hard, or roughed up, or when in a crisis. The phlegmatic, guard type of player maintains his usual average with less of high and low variation. As batting styles differ so do those of free throwing. Certain shots and details of technique, however, are quite generally followed.

REPORT OF THE MARKETS

Report for January 7, 1924

Wheat Steady As Exchange Rates Advance

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—It took little buying to start hte wheat market upward today. With Liverpool wheat quotations higher, and with sterling, francs, and lire, all showing an advance, sellers of wheat here were cautious. Messages from Kansas City said receipts there were inadequate, and that for about the first time this season, the stock in store was being drawn upon. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅛ to ⅝ higher, May 1.08⅞ to 1.08⅝ and July 1.06¾, were followed by a slight reaction.

Subsequently New York stock market strength together with reported liberal European purchases of Canadian wheat over Sunday and general scantiness of receipts led to a fresh additional advance in wheat values. The close was unsettled ¼ to ⅝c net higher, May 1.08⅝ to 1.08¾ and July 1.06⅞.

CORN—Profit-taking sales held down the corn market. Trade was mostly in small lots, and country offerings were light considering that the weather was favorable for enlarged movement of the crop. After opening at ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, May 76⅝ to 76¾, prices steadied at a little below Saturday's finish.

Later there was aggressive buying on the part of a Chicago speculator and the market temporarily scored something of an advance. The close, however, was easy ⅛ to ⅜c net lower, May 76⅝ to 76¾.

OATS—Oats were easy with corn, starting at ⅛ off to ⅛c up, May 45⅝ to 45¾, the market held near to the initial figures.

PROVISIONS—Owing to higher quotations on hogs, provisions although dull, were a little firmer.

Stocks Open Firm; Buying Orders Strong

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stock prices displayed a strong tone at the opening of today's stock market with buying orders distributed in nearly all sections of the list. Canadian Pacific advanced 1⅝ and Iron Products one, while scores of others advanced large fractions over Saturday's closing prices. General Electric dropped one point.

Early buying was most effective in the motor, motor accessory steel chemical, rubber, southern and Southwestern railroad shares. Congoleum advanced 3½ points, United Fruit ¾ and Sloss Sheffield 2. United States Steel touches 100½, the highest since last May and Southern Railroad touched 40⅞, the highest since 1907. Gains of a point or more were registered by more than a score of issues in the first half hour. Foreign exchanges opened firm.

The closing was firm. Sales approximated 1,250,000 shares.

Stoughton Department

C. J. ROLLIS, Editor

Office First Floor, 102 East Main Street. Telephone 664 W.

STOUGHTON—Halvor Johnson and force of men engaged in making highway improvements have returned to Stoughton for the balance of the winter. They continued operations till last week.

Death came to Peter Barry Saturday at his home on Dunkirk Avenue at the age of 85 years. Mr. Barry owned acreage on the east side which he platted into lots some years ago and which were nearly all built upon and the location was since that time known as Barry's addition. He had been about town until recently when he began to fail. He had lived in Stoughton about 50 years. Surviving are his wife and three children, George Barry, the son has a grocery store on East Main St. He was connected with the Stoughton Department Co. until it divided its holdings. There are two daughters. The funeral may be held Monday or Tuesday at the residences of the son on Garden Avenue and burial made at Riverside cemetery.

Some damage was done to the home of Ole Arneson, Hillside St., Friday night, caused by a blaze started from a chimney. The department arrived in time to prevent serious loss. Saturday afternoon fire caught on the outside of the Ted Erickson house on Sixth St. The tenant was trying to thaw a frozen water pipe, but the flames were extinguished by the time the department arrived. There was also a chimney fire in the house of Mrs. H. F. Maloof, West Main St. No loss.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Emery entertained about 50 friends at their home on West Jefferson St., who came to give the couple a party. There was a bountiful spread and social pastime. The daughter was hostess to a number of young people on the evening previous. Before locating in business at Stoughton Mr. Emery and family lived in the town of Rutland. A number of former neighbors were present at the gathering.

Dress Up Party

The Misses Beulah and June Parish entertained a number of young lady friends Friday evening at a "dress up" party at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Parish, North Prairie St. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed.

The annual business meeting of the Congregational church will be held today in the church basement at 6:30 o'clock.

The W. C. T. U. meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. J. Kjelseth Tuesday afternoon. This will be the first jubilee meeting of the year. Mrs. Margaret Jones will be the leader, and music will be furnished by Mrs. John Hofstad.

Community Meeting

The first community club meeting of the New Year will be held at the Doork Creek school, Tuesday evening, Jan. 8, when in addition to other doings lunch will be served.

Start Sorting Samples

J. H. Holtan, warehouse manager for the tobacco pool, states that sorting of samples from the 1923 crop began today at Stoughton, Edgerton, Janesville and in Monroe county. Mr. Holtan declares that the 1923 will be a different crop to handle owing to the great amount of damage.

Miss Gertrude Haven left Sunday on her return to Rice Lake, where she teaches in the public school. Miss Haven has been spending the holiday vacation with her parents, Supervisor and Mrs. J. B. Haven, South Monroe St.

Miss Clara Olson has returned to Irma, Wis., where she teaches school.

Harry P. McKee of the Burns Detective Agency, Chicago, was a caller in Stoughton Saturday seeking Chester Long, for whom he had a warrant on account of alleged theft of an automobile, upon which a Chicago company had issued a policy. Long had been employed by a farmer near Stoughton, but he was located at Evansville, Wis., where he was under arrest for stealing another car.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Johnson and son arrived Saturday on their return from Whitehall, Wis., and were guests of the Drs. Logan, N. Van Buren st. They reside at Utica.

Stoughton Bowlers.

The bowling teams that have been organized, consists of the Badgers: F. Schiel, Oscar Rasmusson, S. Rorge, Clyde Johnson, E. S. Olson; Wagon City five, Dewey Lewis, H. H. Rippchen, M. Everson, S. Sorenson, W. Sullivan. They will enter the state bowling tournament at Janesville in February and will bowl in all three events, five man, doubles and singles.

Mrs. Maurice Landfeldt and babe have returned to Chicago, after a week's visit with her parents; Mr. and Mrs. V. Hendrickson, south side.

State Senator A. E. Gary, enroute home to Edgerton from Madison by automobile, got stalled in a snow drift near Stoughton, so he spent Saturday night, a visitor with his sister, Mrs. Fred Schroede, and husband, S. Madison st.

Joseph Cullman, Jr., of New York, member of the big leaf tobacco concern, known as Cullman Bros. Co., is a caller this week with the local agent, Al Schroede, and with W. F. Miller at Sun Prairie.

Lake Mills Church Holds Supper Wednesday Night

LAKE MILLS, Wis.—Trinity church guild gave a meeting and supper Wednesday.

Isaac Mason has purchased a home in Whitewater and will move there soon.

The D. A. R. chapter held a Christmas meeting at the residence of Mrs. Mary Blecker recently.

Lake Mills ministers are requesting their church members not to just send a delegate to church Sundays but come with the entire family.

The W. C. T. U. held a meeting at the home of Misses Joeckel Thursday. A musical and special program was given.

Mrs. Kilbourn, a granddaughter of a soldier of the Revolutionary War was admitted as a member of the D. A. R.

The League of Women Voters held a meeting Friday at the high school. Miss Ellen Sabin, formerly at the Downer College, spoke on "Education."

Miss Hubbs was a visitor at Madison this week.

E. B. Heimserett was in Madison at his desk in the G. A. R. Memorial hall this week.

Mrs. John W. Faviler left Wednesday for a visit to her parents in Hays, Kas.

Lake Mills people will have to pay $7,000 more tax this year.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Dodge are entertaining Miss Ellen Sabin, Milwaukee.

Dr. A. W. Lange went to Milwaukee Wednesday.

The ladies of the M. E. church served an old fashioned chicken pie dinner New Year's to hundreds of guests.

Stewart Lamb and Alfred Schoff, Janesville, motored through the snow drifts New Year's morning to attend the chicken pie dinner and the Eastern Star party afterward and were guests of C. S. Heimstreet and wife.

Isaac Mason, Whitewater, was awarded a prize as being the best guesser in Lake Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Thorp entertained Jack Lewis, Beaver Dam, this week.

George Manske has purchased the bus line from Chas. Latsch.

Abbie Hooper, Downer College, was a visitor during the holidays.

Miss Lena Fortuna came from Milwaukee where she is attending the business college and spent the holidays with her parents.

Miss Eleanor Bruns, Detroit, has returned home after a pleasant visit to Lake Mills.

Hausmann Site Again Offered for City Hall

The Hausmann property, State and Gorham sts., is again being offered to the city as a possible site for a new city hall. Aldermen have been approached by the new owners with the intention of coming to some agreement. The project may again be discussed at the council meeting next Friday night.

Water Rate Is Low

Madison Ranks Third in Cost Says Smith Per Capita Consumption Less with Meter

Madison has the third lowest water rate of any city in the state, according to information submitted to the board of water commissioners by L. A. Smith, superintendent. A report for 1923 showed that 658 service applications were made and an average daily pumpage of 4,750,000 gallons maintained compared with 4,250,000 gallons daily in 1922. The total amount of water rents to be collected for 1923 is $79,79[illegible] compared with $74,8[illegible] collected for 1922. All delinquent water rents [illegible] assessed against the property.

The board was informed that old meters are being replaced at the rate of about ten a month. Of the 8,905 meters in the city about 3,600 are of an old make. The per capita water consumption in the city is much lower than in cities where a flat rate, instead of the meter system, is used.

As Per Contract, The Winning Plan Has Been Delivered

THE peace plan which Mr. Bok ordered with his $100,000 has been delivered. As per contract, the winning plan favors the entrance of this country into the dark and devious recesses of the chancellories of Europe.

* * *

THE winning plan is designated as 1469. The name of the winning author is withheld. It is a manuscript such as Elihu Root might have written.

The winning plan favors our immediate entry into the world court (part of the machinery of the League of Nations) and our cooperation with the League of Nations "without full membership at present." The inference of the winning plan is that eventually we should enter the league when Articles 10 and 16 are doctored up a bit to meet the objections of the overwhelming opposition to the league in this country. The plan apologizes for Articles 10 and 16 and says that the league is not now using these articles as the original language contemplated.

The Capital Times again maintains that the Bok scheme is simply a big publicity stunt to manufacture sentiment to push the United States into the world court and the league of nations. The same influences that sought to bring this country into the league in a direct way (and were overwhelmingly defeated) are now trying to get us into the league in an indirect way. They are now trying to lead us through the back door.

* * *

SENATOR REED of Missouri has introduced a resolution in the United States senate providing for an investigation of foreign propaganda that has recently been flooding the country. We hope that the Reed resolution, if passed, will make an investigation of this Bok affair. Here is what Senator Shields of Tennessee, a Democrat, says of the Bok plan in this morning's papers:

"The attempt to create public opinion in favor of the prize winning Bok plan is greater in comprehension and detail than that by which it was attempted by those financially and commercially interested in the League of Nations and it involves expenditures of terrific sums of money which doubtless came from the same sources."

If this is a scheme such as Senator Shields suggests the influences that are skulking back of the Bok plan ought to be revealed.

* * *

IT is quite significant that the newspapers have not "fallen" for the scheme with the enthusiasm that the sponsors of the Bok award anticipated. In Chicago, The Post is the only newspaper which is running the referendum coupon. The Tribune, Herald-Examiner, News, Journal and American have ignored it. In Milwaukee, the Anglophile Milwaukee Journal has already begun to beat the tom-toms for the scheme.

The same influences that sought to put this country into the League of Nations are most enthusiastic about the Bok plan.

The jury deciding the winning plan was packed. The referendum is packed. Congress and the country ought to know that.

The Mellon Plan

HERE are some views on the Mellon plan from public men at Washington.

Senator Brookhart—"The Mellon plan is an efficient scheme for buncoing the public with an alluring call for tax reduction, a scheme that means big reduction for the big fellows and little reduction for the little ones."

Congressman Keller, Minnesota—"The actual facts are that 8 per cent of our people derive absolutely no benefit from the Mellon plan; 18 per cent derive a small proportionate benefit while 2 per cent, representing the wealthy of our citizens, benefit tremendously in the proposed tax reductions."

Here is something significant from yesterday's papers:

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A statement indorsing the Mellon tax plan and calling a conference of bankers and others here on Jan. 18 to discuss it was issued on Saturday by Charles Deb. Claiborne, president of the American Bankers' league.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Wants New Auto Fund

Writer Suggests Tax to Pay for Accidents Irrespective of Where the Blame Lies.

[To The Editor]—I understand that when a farmer's sheep or cattle are killed by dogs he may be reimbursed for the loss out of the dog tax. Whether this is correct or not, the principle is a good one and needs to be applied in the case of death or injury by automobile.

Comparatively few automobile owners carry casualty insurance. Even when they do carry such insurance, victims of automobile accidents rarely receive from the insurance companies sufficient compensation to pay their hospital and doctor's bills and loss of earnings, etc. The insurance companies are experts in the gentle art of defeating justice when the cases are taken to court; they are past masters in ways needed to effect a settlement at the expense of the victim of an automobile accident. It is a matter of general knowledge that the victim of an automobile accident rarely, if ever, gets a fair settlement.

Whatever our views as to the preponderance of blameworthiness, whether it is the "jay walker" or the "careless driver two facts are notable: first very few victims of accidents are compensated to the full amount of their loss; second, responsibility for the accident is hardly ever definitely arrived at. In a majority of cases it is an "accident" without anybody being wholly at fault. Add to these two facts the third fact, usually left out of consideration, that the automobile itself is, in every case, the instrument that inflicts the injury and we are in a position to decide upon a fair solution to the problem of what to do about automobile accidents.

That solution is suggested in the first paragraph above. Applied to the automobile situation it would be something as follows: Collect an additional tax from each automobile owner at the time of issuing the license. This tax to be used as an insurance fund to pay all damages resulting from automobile accidents without regard as to which party is to blame. Exceptions, of course, would be made when there was an attempt at suicide, etc.

How much would the additional tax have to be. This is hard to answer. In today's Capital Times you give figures that make an estimate possible. There were 120 deaths due to automobile accidents for the last 10 months; call it 125 for the year. Damages in the case of death could not properly be placed at much less than $20,000. This amount, used to purchase an annuity for the surviving dependents or potential dependents would perhaps be fairly satisfactory in most cases. There were 1731 injured in the past 10 months. Call it 1800 for the year. Perhaps $500 would be a reasonable estimate of the loss from each injury. The loss from this item would total $900,000. The loss from 125 deaths at $20,000 each would be $2,500,000. The total, then, is $3,400,000 a year. Since there are something like 350,000 or more automobiles in the state the tax would be about $10 each.

Any man who carries casualty insurance in any of the commercial companies would jump at the chance of being fully protected for such a small sum. He would also have the satisfaction of knowing that his victim would receive adequate compensation. His conscience would not hurt him as it must necessarily do now when the commercial company protects him at the expense of his victim.

Many incidental advantages would ensue. The saving to the state in the operation of the courts would be great. Claims could be handled by a commission similar to the Industrial Commission in a fair way according to the dictates of justice. Very few such cases would be appealed to the courts. The possibility of cutting the insurance rate by reducing the accidents would tend to increase the pressure of public opinion against the careless driver. Very small causes may produce large effects in the realm of psychology; in this case a small appeal to thousands of pocketbooks might cut the accident rate in half, as a similar slight appeal cut the industrial accident rate.

The automobile is an evil perhaps, a necessary evil it seems. However, it is now a factor in our social life and the solution of the automobile problem must be as broad as the problem. The one phase of the problem, economic loss due to accidents, must receive careful thought. Strictly, it is not an individual matter. The state must handle the situation. It can do no better than to apply to this matter the solution it already applies to the killing of sheep by dogs.—Cosmo Politan.

WHY THE LABOR PARTY WON.

No event in recent political history has created so much interest among progressives the world over as the British Labor Party's great triumph at the polls.

But to appreciate fully the significance of the victory, one must be conversant with the crisply worded platform on which the party stood. It is printed in full in another column on this page and every reader of the Star is urged to study it. Note that it is absolutely devoid of pussyfooting or straddling. It was framed by men and women who had not been fooled by the mouthings of Tories advocating the establishment of a tariff with all that it means in the way of "monopoly, profiteering, corruption in politics, and impoverishment of the people." It shows a genuine desire to lighten the burden of the agriculturist which is in startling contrast to President Coolidge's attitude with regard to the farming industry. It exhibits real sympathy for the former service man—also in contrast to President Coolidge's message—and throughout breathes the spirit of progress and fair play.

One has but to read the Labor Party's platform to realize why it has such a strong appeal to the electorate.—Minnesota Daily Star.

Mrs. Matron walked into her kitchen at an inopportune time and found her cook kissing a policeman.

"Bridget," she said, when the officer had left, rather hastily, "why did you let that policeman kiss you?"

The daughter of Erin wasn't in the least embarrassed as she said:

"It's agin the law to resist an officer, ma'am."

Courts Usurp Power

Senator E. F. Ladd Says the Supreme Court Has Taken More Than Constitution Grants

By EDWIN F. LADD
U. S. Senator from North Dakota

There is no question that the supreme court has usurped the power to declare an act of congress to be unconstitutional. Legislative enactments have been declared void by this great tribunal. I believe such an exercise of power to be a dangerous usurpation of a legislative function. Universal experience has been that power usurped in any branch of government has proved to be power dishonestly and corruptly used.

Prior to adoption of the federal constitution it is evident that the power of the states was supreme, sovereign and unlimited. But "in order to form a more perfect union" they delegated a portion of it to the federal government, clearly specifying that which they delegated and withholding all the rest.

The federal constitution confers upon the federal government certain powers expressly enumerated; the constitutions of the states contain a general grant of powers not excepted or prohibited. The federal constitution is a grant of powers; the state constitutions are limitations of powers.

In the face of these well established rules of interpretation it is pretty hard to understand how the supreme court of the United States could take to itself the right to exercise a power not expressly conferred by the federal constitution. There is no question that the power is not expressly conferred, and it should be equally unquestionable that the power cannot be derived by necessary implication.

They can only have it by the sufferance of congress. It was never intended they should have.

It was intended that the congress should be the supreme branch of government, and that the congress would have to go back to the people and report every two years. Any other conclusion would be an assumption that the people had wilfully relinquished control of supreme functions of government and placed those functions in the hands of a few men who were not directly responsible to the people.

Under the constitution congress alone should determine whether or not a proposed act was constitutional. As the member of the house or the senate decides on any such question that might arise, just so will his record go back to the people as his report, and they will decide whether or not they approve of his course. In this way the people can give expression every two years.

The fact that congress has been asleep on its duty and has not zealously guarded this great power, and has not insisted that the supreme court function only in its intended sphere, does not mean that the people have lost that right and that a growing despotism shall be enthroned.

If this congress will pass a new judiciary act, defining the powers and rights of the supreme court, and declare in that act that it shall not hereafter have the power to declare an act of congress unconstitutional, the people of this great land will arise and support them in such a measure, and the supreme court of the United States will not dare challenge that right.

Should it attempt to do so, then it would be the solemn duty of congress to proceed under the constitution to dissolve the court that attempted it and constitute another one to take its place.

Tip o' the Tongue

IT PROFITS a man little in dollars and cents to work for "A" grades at college unless he also possesses the ability to mix well with his fellows. Phi Beta Kappa men, those few who are prominent for scholastic ability, have acquired an average income of $3000 a year during a 10-year period since graduation, and those who gained prominence in college for their "mixing" in campus life have acquired incomes averaging more than $10,000 in the same time. The statistics do not prove that the men of the high grades are incapable of earning big money; they merely show that they do not prefer those lines of work which are most lucrative.

—ADELBERT FORD, instructor in psychology, University of Michigan.

* * *

THE ADMINISTRATIVE officers of the University of Chicago regard the use of intoxicating liquor by students as physically, intellectually and morally dangerous, and as contrary to the spirit of the law of the land. They therefore believe that it tends to defeat the purposes of education. The university will not tolerate use of intoxicants by its students in territory subject to its government, and will exert its influence to discourage such use by them elsewhere. In accordance with this policy the university has dismissed one student and suspended two others.

—Dr. Ernest D. Burton, president, University of Chicago.

THE GOVERNMENT of Trinidad, one of the West Indies Isles off the coast of Venezuela, has a "gold mine" in its "Pitch Lake" as long as the demand for asphalt for street paving keeps up. This country imports practically all of its asphalt from Trinidad and the government gets a royalty on every ton. The lake seems to have an endless supply and fills up as fast as a supply is drawn from it. The whole section for miles near the lake is saturated with the asphalt and on a very warm day the ground is so soggy that automobiles and other vehicles often sink up to their hubs.

—John Lechmere Guppy of Port-au-Prince, capital of Trinidad, now in this country.

Natureland

Dr. Dayton Stoner, University of Iowa, says bird migration is a matter of taste. Insect eaters have to go where they can obtain insects at all seasons. Seed or flesh-eating birds can easily subsist as far north as the Arctic circle.

An oddity of the migratory birds is the golden plover, which summers in the Arctic circle and winters in southeastern South America. In its southwest movement, this bird goes first to Nova Scotia, where it fattens up. Then it wings its way 2400 miles over water to the Brazilian coast. In the spring it takes a short cut back to the Arctic.

A POOK

Now, says a good book unto me,
Open my pages and you shall see
Jewels of wisdom and treasures fine,
Gold and silver in every line,
And you may claim them if you but will
Open my pages and take your fill.

Open my pages and run them o'er,
Take what you choose of my golden store.
Be you greedy, I shall not care—
All that you seize I shall gladly spare;
There is never a lock on my treasure doors,
Come in for my jewels and make them yours.

I am just a book on your mantle shelf,
But I can be part of your living self;
If only you'll travel my pages through,
I can then travel the world with you.
As two wines blended make better wine,
Blend your mind with these truths of mine.

I'll make you fitter to talk with men,
I'll touch with silver the lines you pen,
I'll lead you nearer the truth you seek,
I'll strengthen you when your faith grows weak—
This place on your shelf is a prison cell,
Let me come into your mind to dwell!

THE IMPERMANENT WAVE

He once did sport a fiery mane,
His reddish hair had waves;
His mass of curls drove men insane,
They made the girls his slaves,

But that was many years ago,
When he was but a lad,
And times have changed a lot you know—
So has the hair he had.

The tide recedes; it ebbs and flows,
Just like his "waves" so called,
Now when he doffs his hat, he shows,
A head completely bald.

In a lawyer's office down in the Chicago loop the other day, a South side politician of the "cellar gang" variety burst in and excitedly asked, "What would you do if a paper should call you a thief and a liar."

"Well," said his lawyer," if I were you I'd toss up a coin to see whether I'd reform or pay no attention to the statement."

On a Monroe street car, Saturday morning, several Wingra Park humorists were trying to liven up the customary 20 minute wait, while the car from the other direction meandered its way out to the Grant street switch. The conversation naturally was about the weather. Each told what the thermometer read on his or her front porch during the early hours. Of course, each succeeding statement, shot the mercury down a few degrees.

Presently an innocent new-comer climbed aboard.

"What was the temperature over your way this morning," he was asked.

"About 25 below," was the answer.

"Oh, well!" was the retort, "You're not in it with this crowd. We've worked it down to 55 already".

In days of old when knights were bold
And armor was the style,
When wife got to throwing things
You merely pulled a smile.

You'd quickly clamp your visor shut
And simply sit and grin,
The while the china pattered down
Upon your roof of tin.

And when you went to sleep at night
Wife didn't have a chance,
Because you'd have locks put upon
The pockets of your pants.

Of course these lines will hold no interest for Tom Kaczynski.

The lawyers will probably explain that Tom merely liked to have his own way.

Instead of sending Kilonis to Africa, Roundy should arrange to have Kilonis and Kaczynski locked in a room together.

Then we could fix it up to have Eckersall put in with them, as a referee.

The Chicago Tribune would probably want to have Walter Camp included as coach, or something, in Kilonis' corner.

TO MABEL AND EDNA

Twinkle, twinkle, pretty stars;
In what a dandy mess you are.
'Way out there in Hollywood,
Wait till Hayes comes—you'll be good.

Won't you ever get your fill?
Now Puritans your names will kill.
Better leave gin bucks alone,
And tell your "playmates" to stay home.

Rennebohm's Badger Pharmacy is a model of propriety, ordinarily. But one of the clerks pulled a fair one the other day.

When asked for a copy of "The American Mercury," a new magazine of criticism by Mencken and Nathan, said clerk replied, "We don't have that one. What is it anyway,—a chemistry magazine from the University?"

KNUTE ROCKNE SAYS CAKE EATERS MENACE GAME

There's one consolation for the weather we are having. The one or two thousand cake eaters at Wisconsin could never stand very much of it.

Laura Ehle, the fair blondie cashier at the College Refectory, came forth with this remark as we filed by to settle up, for breakfast, the morning of 25 below.

"Gee whizz, this money is so cold I almost hate to take it".

You might also add, Laura, that you wouldn't go to the basket ball games if you got free tickets; that you'd hate to drive a Lincoln limousine if it was given to you; that a ham sandwich tastes better than steak and mushrooms.

"My Goodness! And is that what you report to the income tax man?"

"Oh Heavens, No! That's actually my income."

Poems That Live

THE RELAPSE.

O turn away those cruel eyes,
The stars of my undoing!
Or death, in such a bright disguise
May tempt a second wooing.

Punish their blind and impious pride,
Who dare condemn thy glory;
It was my fall that deified
Thy name, and seal'd thy story.

Yet no new sufferings can prepare
A higher praise to crown thee;
Though my first death proclaim thee fair,
My second will unthrone thee.

Lovers will doubt thou canst entice
No other for thy full,
And if those burn thy victims twice,
Both think thee poor and cruel.
